SUPERIOR COURT SESSION

Verdict for Plaintiffs in Auto Case
—Mrs. Strout Sues Local Florists for Damages

At the opening of the superior court session this morning, Attorney Albert S. Howard, of Quabbin, introduced a motion for a speedy trial in the case of Connors Bros. vs. the Y. M. C. A., for payment of a promissory note of $39,000. Mr. Dunbar, who represents the defense, declared that the defendants admit that they owe the amount of the note to the Y. M. C. A., but that they desire to delay the trial in order that the case might go over to November. Mr. Howard, on the plaintiff's side, requested the court to allow him to file a claim for a jury trial and to mark the case for trial or default on next Tuesday. The court allowed this motion and marked the case for trial on next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. In case of default or of a verdict for plaintiff, judgment will be issued on the first Monday in December. According to the plaintiff, the promissory note was given last March, and since that time nothing has been done to raise the money. It is the expectation of all parties that before judgment is obtained, some action will be taken by the defendant for raising the money.

Verdict for Defendants
Late this morning, the jury in the cases of Jennie E. Goddard and Melissa Ellis vs. John F. Horne of Lawrence, an accident case resulting from the alleged collision of the auto of the defendant with a carriage of the plaintiffs, returned a verdict for the plaintiffs, Mrs. Ellis to receive $37.50, and Miss Goddard $254.

Case of Strout vs. Morse et al.
The case of Strout vs. Morse et al. was called for trial this morning. The plaintiffs in two cases, which are to be tried as one, are Nellie F. Strout, and her husband, Frank R. Strout. Mrs. Strout in her declaration alleges that on Aug. 31 of last year she went to the flower store of the defendants to purchase some flowers, and that she was there on the invitation of the defendant. She stated that while in the exercise of due care, she fell down a stairway which was concealed by a table or counter in the store, and was severely injured so that she still continues to suffer. She claims carelessness on the part of the defendants and says that the stairway was dangerously located. Her husband in his declaration alleges that he was put to great expense on account of the injuries of his wife, and sues to recover for this. Quabbin and Rogers for the plaintiffs, F. E. Dunbar for defendant. Mrs. Strout was the first witness and when examined by Mr. Stanley Qua, testified to the facts as given in her declaration. She was on the stand throughout the morning.

PLYMOUTH, Oct. 21.—Rapid progress in the presentation of testimony was expected in the Eaton trial today. The government planned to call a number of neighbors of the Eatons at Assinippi, to tell of what they knew of conditions in the household prior to the death of Rear Admiral Joseph Eaton, with whose murder his wife, Mrs. Jennie May Eaton is charged. The sun shone into the courtroom today for the first time since the trial of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton began a week ago. The crowd was smaller than on previous days, though, as usual, women predominated.

Mrs. Charles M. Hill, who lived near the Eatons at Assinippi, testified to conversations with Mrs. Eaton in which the defendant had said that Admiral

SAVINGS BANKS AND NATIONAL

How They Differ—"Savings Department" of National Bank a Subterfuge for Evasion of Law

The question commonly asked throughout the city today is, "If the national bank is examined regularly by the examiners, why are not the funds there deposited just as secure as the funds deposited in a savings bank under the supervision of the Massachusetts Savings Bank commission?" There are many reasons which the people should know, and which many of our readers would know had they taken heed to an article published in

The Sun some time ago and explaining the danger of a savings department conducted in connection with a national bank and not complying with the laws and regulations governing savings banks controlled by the savings bank commission of Massachusetts. The laws governing the methods of doing business in a national bank are very much different from those governing the business of a regular savings bank. Continued on page eight

Council Invites State Inspector to Come Here—Adopts Order Relative to State Election

The members of the municipal council held their regular weekly meeting this forenoon and the most important matter was to adopt an order in reference with the state election which will be held on Nov. 4, relative to certain questions which will be placed on the ballot. A list of routine business was transacted and about 50 orders pertaining to pole locations and wire attachments were adopted. The meeting was called to order by

Mayor O'Donnell at 11:03 o'clock with all members present with the exception of Commissioner Barrett, who arrived at 11:25 o'clock. The first matter taken up was a petition of the Lowell Electric Light Corp. for permission to erect three poles on Fairfax street between Stevens street and Highland avenue. KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Inquest Finding Exonerates Melrose Man in Death of Ellen Teague—Other Finding

The report of the inquest held on the death of Miss Ellen Teague, who was struck and killed by an automobile owned and operated by Avery A. Thresher, of Melrose Highlands on Oct. 11, in High street, near the junction of Chestnut street, was given out by Judge John J. Pickman today. After reviewing the circumstances of the accident, as testified to at the inquest, the report reads as follows: "I find that the accident was not due to the negligence of said Avery A. Thresher, the operator."

"I find that on Tuesday, the 14th day of October last passed, that Ellen Teague was struck by an automobile on High street in the city of Lowell, that was owned and operated by Avery A. Thresher, a resident of Melrose Highlands, in said county, and sustained injuries thereby that caused her death."

"I find that her death was not the result of the criminal negligence of the operator of said automobile."

(Signed) "John J. Pickman, Senior Special Justice of the Police Court of Lowell, and Acting."

Death of Unknown Man
The finding on the inquest on the body of an unidentified man, whose body was found early in the morning of Sept. 9, at the bottom of the trestle work in Warren street, was announced by Judge Pickman today. The report read in part as follows: "I find that the man fell from the trestle to the ground below and sustained the injuries that caused his death. I cannot state with certainty whether he came into the yard in a freight car and got out of the car in the early morning and walked on the trestle on the northerly side of the track and walked off the trestle, or whether he went into the storehouse to sleep, and got up in the early morning and walked off the end of the plank. The place where the body was found would tend probability to the latter version of the accident."

"I find that the man had no business of a legitimate kind in the yard of the company or upon its premises, and that there was no negligence on the part of the company."

"I find that the death was not due to the criminal negligence of the Merrimack Utilization company or of any of its officers, agents or servants."

(Signed) John J. Pickman.

TWO MEN ELECTROCUTED

Instantly Killed by Live Wire in
Malden—Three Others Injured
—Boy Killed by Wire in Haverhill

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Two men were killed and three others were seriously injured by live wires swept from their yards during the severe storm in Malden yesterday.

The dead are Samuel Peters, 21 years old, of Providence, R. I., and Ralph Boutlier, 17 years old, of 116 Lynn street, Malden.

The injured are Dennis J. Hurley, 103 Lejaque street, Malden; his son, Joseph L. Hurley, and Andrew Repetto, 35 Hancock street, Malden.

While Ralph Boutlier was crossing a field at the corner of Lynn and Lawrence streets last night he saw a number of bright sparks floating around in the darkness, close to the ground. He attempted to catch one of them and found they were sparks from a live wire.

Notwithstanding his struggles, the wire wrapped itself around the body of the young man and he was killed. Andrew Repetto who was with him attempted to drag the wire away and nearly met death himself in the attempt.

Dr. Fred Andrews of Revere and William W. Lougee of Malden, with a pulper from the Medford & Malden Gas Light Company, worked over Boutlier for two hours, striving to bring back life without success.

Boutlier was a graduate of the Malden High school and was employed by the Liberty Trust Company of Boston.

Instantly Electrocuted

During the afternoon Samuel Peters, who had been visiting at the home of Robert Briggs, 14 Garden street, attempted to pick a wire from a muddy sidewalk. The wire was highly charged and Peters was instantly killed.

Joseph L. Hurley, seeing his plight, and thinking himself protected because he was wearing rubber overboots, went to his assistance, only to be knocked unconscious. Dennis J. Hurley was severely shocked and burned, but he finally managed to pull his son from the wire.

The pulper was also used on Peters, but it failed to revive him. Peters was a native of Belfast, Ireland, and had been in this country but four years. He was employed as an officer on the steamer Georgia, plying between Providence and Savannah.

BOY KILLED

Haverhill Lad Electrocuted by Grasping Live Wire Under Pier—Hurley Master Narrowly Escaped

HAVERHILL, Oct. 21.—Clayton Morse, aged 13, of 28 Lewis street was electrocuted on a pier under the Haverhill-Bradford bridge yesterday afternoon and Harbor Master John Gilmartin narrowly escaped the same fate. The latter was rescued by a minister.

Morse, with a companion named Pike, walked out on the stringers underneath the bridge and had reached the pier on the Bradford side of the long fender pier supporting the draw when he caught hold of the cables carrying a heavy voltage of electricity from the power plants of the Bay State & Haverhill Electric company, also the cables supplying power to the motors, which operate the draw. In doing so the boy got a ground with the cables which run into the river and the combined currents passed through his body.

Thoroughly frightened, Pike ran to Harbor Master Gilmartin, who was in his house at the Bradford end of the bridge, for assistance. The harbor master went to the point where the boy was clinging to the wires, climbed down to the pier and attempted to pull the boy off from the wires, with the result that he also suffered a severe shock and was rendered partially unconscious.

Charles A. Willey, who was in the harbor master's house, grew uneasy when Gilmartin did not return and went out to investigate, and with the Rev. Robert Atkinson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, found the boy and the man clinging to the wire. Gilmartin was struggling to free himself, but the boy remained inert. The Rev. Mr. Atkinson succeeded in pulling Gilmartin away by his clothing and he quickly recovered from the shock. The boy was dead. His body dropped into the river, but was recovered.

A NEW PLAGUE

Epidemic in Framingham Laid to Chestnuts by Doctors

FRAMINGHAM, Oct. 21.—Doctors are reporting the existence of an epidemic in Framingham, Westboro and surrounding towns, which they blame upon the promiscuous eating of chestnuts.

For some years there has been a blight affecting chestnut trees over the entire country, and the plague is just beginning to reach Massachusetts. This year the chestnuts have been plenty and as the result an unusual number of people have been eating them.

This fall the doctors have been overrun with cases of a peculiar nature. The cause of these cases of sickness is now laid to chestnuts.

The new disease affects the tongue and mouth and causes intestinal disturbances. Dr. R. M. Raymond and F. W. Hoyt of the Framingham bacteriological laboratory are conducting an exhaustive investigation. Meanwhile, they are advising everyone to abstain from eating chestnuts.

Boy Guilty of Murder of Captain Young, a Retired Seaman

ELLSWORTH, Me., Oct. 21.—Edwin Goodwin, an 18-year-old Surry boy, pleaded guilty to an indictment that he murdered Captain Harry C. Young on Oct. 23 last, in the supreme court yesterday. He was remanded for sentence.

Goodwin confessed immediately after the killing and robbing of Captain Young, a retired sea captain, who kept a small store at Surry. When arraigned in April on the indictment reported then, he pleaded not guilty and a motion by counsel that he be committed to the state hospital at Augusta for observation of his mental condition was granted. The observation having failed to show he was insane, the boy decided to plead guilty to the charge. There is no death penalty in Maine.

Observed 22nd Anniversary With a Banquet and Entertainment

Over 150 members and friends of Wamesit lodge, 1102, I. O. O. F. M. N. U., gathered in Odd Fellows hall last night to celebrate the 22nd birthday of the lodge. Early in the evening a banquet was served and this was followed by an entertainment which consisted of numbers by local and out of town talent.

The evening's program was opened with remarks by Chairman J. H. Encret, who welcomed the guests and referred to the work that Wamesit lodge was doing at the present time. Other numbers on the program were: Piano solos, Brother Henderson; song, W. McGrath; remarks, P. G. Orrell; duet, Matthew Lord and P. M. Silk.

The principal speaker of the evening was P. G. Fred Humphris of the home lodge who spoke at some length on fraternalism and good fellowship. His talk was very interesting and won much applause.

Mr. Humphris' Address
"It is hardly necessary for me to explain how highly I appreciate the honor you have given me in allowing me the opportunity of making a few remarks here this evening. I heartily thank you for the cordial invitation and I assure you it is deeply appreciated."

"Your chairman told me that the theme upon which I should speak tonight ought to be vital and of human interest—some such words as these he used. I tried to think up what would be vital and of human interest to my brother members who are here tonight celebrating the 22nd anniversary of Loyall Wamesit lodge. I confess I am somewhat at a loss what to say that is new that will prove interesting for the short time allotted to me."

Fraternalism
"The lodges of any organization differ as individuals differ. Some are looking forward and some backward; some are forging ahead and securing results for the society, while others are in a rut and derive no benefit from the opportunities and benefits which lie within their reach. The lodge is suffering from the effects of inertia and are not living examples of the fraternal principles."

"The supreme or grand lodge officers may do all that lies within human power to reverse these conditions, but the fact remains that it is up to the local officers and the individual members to do their share to make the lodge a vital and living force in the life of the community. Their efforts are what have been responsible for the wonderful growth and success which have attended fraternalism in the past, so constructing a foundation that is now four square to the winds that blow."

"The future then rests in our hands. It is to be determined by the manner in which we live up to our duties and opportunities. The basic principle of fraternalism calls for our earnest effort and assistance in the interests of our organization."

"If the average lodge continue to give the same degree of loyalty that has been the keynote of past operation, the future is assured. However, we cannot expect to derive more benefit and good than we give. It is hardly to be expected that fraternalism can succeed and flourish if members do not attend meetings. The opportunity for expressing one's thoughts before an assembly of thoughtful men, the practice of systematic keeping of accounts, of acquiring habits of frugality and of making provision for the future—these are but a few of the desirable features open to all. They form the foundation upon which the fraternal system has been constructed. They are only possible of development through our local lodges. The lodge may well be said to be the people, for the people and by the people."

The Lodge and the Home

"Some one cried out recently that fraternal orders tend to destroy individualism, that association of man with his fellows consequences the individual and his individualism. That thought, at first glance, seems to carry a 'punch,' but by tearing it in bits and calmly gazing at the remains, we find it is merely a lot of words with no conviction back of it. The home is a fraternal order of father, mother, son and daughter—the greatest and soundest of fraternals. Is individualism destroyed there? Is the son's future—his many thoughts—his determination for his future life warped or dimmed by association with father and mother and sister? Isn't the father room a fraternal home where fathers and mothers and sisters and brothers meet? Doesn't fraternalism mean 'home' and home ties, home benefits, home loves? Do we not have many of the same questions in the lodge room as we are confronted with in the home? If the trend of thought and practice in the lodge room is permitted by home ties, and benefits and uplifts, then where's the difference between home and the lodge room?"

"Brothers, the future of the Manchester Unity in this country rests entirely upon ourselves, and I am satisfied to believe that the usefulness, the brotherly feelings and fraternal spirit the past will carry you on to even greater achievements in the future."

"The active members find themselves engaged in a broader field of charitable endeavor than they could ever find in any other connection. They become gentle and tender in their dealings with fellow members, and in this way learn to subdue self in their consideration for others. Strong and lasting friendships are made in our lodge rooms, and men entirely different in methods of living, apparently far apart in the social scale, are brought to a lively appreciation of the only true democracy, when they clasp hands in the work of our fraternity. Though there may be some who are dismayed at the prospects, I feel sure that every earnest worker, mindful of the lessons of the past, will go ahead in the full assurance that the settlements of brotherhood and true fellowship will enable us to overcome all obstacles that may confront us in the years to come, and make the name of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows Manchester Unity, a household word throughout the length and breadth of our United States."

NO NAVAL HOLIDAY

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—The proposal by Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty, that England and Germany should declare a "naval holiday" in 1914 was received without sympathy by the German government which regards it as not calling for a reply. It is generally considered doubtful whether any official notice will be taken of the suggestion, although it is thought Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg may, perhaps, refer to the subject later on in the course of debate in the imperial parliament.

The naval authorities here consider the proposition that Germany should not build any warships while England is constructing or acquiring at least three cannot be discussed.

RUSSELL WILL

A Rumor That "Dakota Dan" Loses Fight—He Expects to be Arrested

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Master Gilbert A. Pevey, sitting as master for the supreme court, made a secret disclosure of his findings in the famous Russell will case to the lawyers in the case yesterday.

Last night it was said in Pemberton square that the finding would not be favorable to "Dakota Dan." At the same time it was stated that the master had carefully refrained from naming "Fresno Dan" as the rightful heir. Attorney William R. Scharton for Dakota Dan and Attorneys Robert W. Nason and Eugene C. Upton for Fresno Dan were called to the office of the master and there told of his findings. They were admonished to maintain the strictest secrecy until the document in full is filed with the court by the master. It is said to be a bulky folio containing more than 100 pages, going into the testimony fully.

Coincident with the rumors of the finding came rumors that criminal prosecutions would follow the filing of the report. It is said District Attorney Higgins of Middlesex county has already had several interviews with Master Pevey in regard to the case.

District Attorney Higgins said last night that any action that he might take will be based upon what he believes the evidence to show. He said, even if Master Pevey made no recommendation for arrests, he could, if the evidence demanded it, place under arrest any or all witnesses.

Dakota Dan said last night he expected to be arrested. He hoped he would be for that would give him a chance to get his case before a jury. He said the only reason they had not arrested him before was because they had not dared to. He thought now that public opinion had gone so far in regard to vilified hints of perjury that his opponents would be compelled to arrest him.

Meanwhile Fresno Dan, who has been received by William C. Russell as his real brother, has left town. Fresno Dan, after being accepted by Brother William and Ferdinand Almy, executor of the estate, as the real missing heir, was given quarters in the stable of the old Russell estate at Melrose. It was said in Melrose last night that Fresno Dan was visiting relatives in Buda, Ill.

William C. Russell, who has opposed the claims of Dakota Dan and favors Fresno Dan, declined to comment last night upon the finding. He admitted, however, that Fresno Dan had been making a trip in the west and claimed he would return to Melrose shortly.

NEGRO QUESTION

Heated Debate at the Episcopal Church Convention Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—A heated debate over the negro question in the south enlivened the deliberations of the house of deputies of the Protestant Episcopal church at today's session of the general convention. A majority report of the committee on racial, episcopate with recommendations against the proposal to establish separate churches, dioceses, clergy and bishops for negroes in the south was presented. A minority report advocating the separation of the races and the appointment of negro bishops to sit in the house of bishops with powers equal to the whites was also presented. Amid a storm of discussion the house finally made consideration of both reports the order of business for the afternoon session tomorrow.

A loss of more than 15,000 pupils in the last three years from the Sunday schools of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States was reported today.

While there had been a loss in the Sunday schools, the report added, there had been a gain in communicants.

A petition from the New England Tel. Co. for the erection of a pole in Burn street was read, and the council after hearing the remarks of Mrs. Anna McGreevey, who appeared as a remonstrant, referred the petition.

Mrs. Gilman, residing at 67 Nineteenth street appeared in favor of a petition for the removal of a pole in Nineteenth street, which is being opposed by Mrs. Barber Wilson. Mrs. Gilman said she is building a new house in the said street and her tenants want to use electricity, and in order to get the wires to her house, the company is forced to remove the pole in question. She claims the company is willing to remove the pole to another location and bear the expense, but she does not favor this inasmuch as she said if the pole were removed near the property of Mrs. Wilson, it would not cause any damage.

Commissioner Cummings said there are already two poles on Mrs. Wilson's property and he does not feel it would be just to erect another there. He suggested the matter be laid on the table until such time as a conference can be held with the parties interested, and it was so agreed.

Several petitions for attachments of wires and fixtures on poles of the Lowell Electric Light Corp. and the New England Tel. Co. were read and referred.

The New England Tel. Co. was given leave to withdraw its petition for the location of three poles in Adams street.

About 50 orders for pole locations and wire attachments, which have been pending for some time were read and adopted. A petition asking the city to install an electric light in Sayles street was read and referred. An order to rescind the order to lay a sidewalk in Plain street was adopted.

An order to lay a sewer in Hildreth street at a cost of $495 was read and adopted. Another to lay a sewer in Daniels street at a cost of $1245 on a distance of 350 feet, was also adopted.

The New Band Stand

Commissioner Cummings presented two orders for the payment of the sums of $98.35 and $135 to the estate of Patrick Conlon for work performed at the comfort station, and the same were adopted. A contract between Commissioner Cummings and Commissioner Carr of the park department as one party, and Messrs. Stuckney and Graves as the other, for the plans for the band stand to be erected on the South common at a cost of 10 per cent. of the entire cost of the work, was approved by the council, as well as that between Commissioner Cummings and J. J. Gaffney for work at the Greenhedge school, the amount involved being $107.

An order was read and adopted authorizing the mayor to sign some property which formerly belonged to A. C. Wheelock, over to Alfred D. Cates. It is understood that Mr. Wheelock after the city had seized his land for taxes, paid the said taxes but did not receive his title. This was vetoed at the suggestion of City Solicitor Hennessy.

To Inspect Hospital Sites

Mr. Cummings introduced a motion asking that a representative of the state board of health be invited to come to this city to inspect the various sites proposed for the contagious hospital, and that the said representative select a proper site. In introducing his motion Mr. Cummings said he was notified by the secretary of the state board of health that the board would have to be called upon to approve any site selected by the council for the erection of a contagious hospital, and he felt it was as well to have the board pick out the site. The motion was passed.

An order setting forth Nov. 4 as the day for the state election was read and adopted. At this point a recess of ten minutes was voted and it was a half-hour later when the council reconvened.

Mr. Cummings presented an order to the effect that the different questions which are to appear on the ballot at the state election be abridged, and it was so voted. Mr. Hennessy stated this meant a considerable decrease in the election expenses, but nevertheless the abridged matter will have to be printed and mailed to each voter in Lowell. The questions as they will appear on the ballot are as follows:

Pursuant to resolves of 1913—Chap. 25, shall the constitution of the commonwealth of Massachusetts be amended—by making women eligible to appointment as notaries public, be approved and ratified?

Pursuant to resolves of 1913—Chap. 116, shall the proposed amendment to the constitution authorizing the referendum be approved and ratified?

Pursuant to resolves of 1913—Chap. 315, shall the above act, permitting members of the fire department of the city of Lowell to be excused from duty for one day out of every five without loss of pay be accepted?

Shall chapter 897, acts of 1913—being an act to provide for compensating laborers, workmen and mechanics for injuries sustained in public employment and to exempt from legal liability counties and municipal corporations which by such compensation, provided for in acts of 1911, chap. 751, part 2, be accepted by the inhabitants of this county?

Excited Depositors Flocked to Building—Bank May Pay Ninety Per Cent—The Stockholders

The vicinity of the Traders National bank on Middlesex street was frequented by a great number of people this morning who gathered in Post-office avenue to ascertain if any notices or other papers had been posted on the bank doors. The statement of Clarence H. Nelson, president of the bank, which told the circumstances of the closing and that depositors were assured of their money was removed last night or this morning and only the notice of the failure of the bank remained.

Hundreds of mill employees passed the door this morning before going to work in the hope of finding a statement relative to the opening of the bank. Many men and women, mostly foreigners, walked around the building up to a late hour last night, and in spite of the drizzling rain they stood on the corners trying to secure some information as to the safety of their deposits.

The police officers who were sent to the building to prevent disturbance were questioned many times but no trouble was started by the anxious depositors.

Will Probably Pay 90 Per Cent.

A local bank official who is in a position to know a great deal about the inside affairs of the Traders bank, said: "Unless the slump is far greater

INDICTMENT AGAINST EDITOR QUASHED

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 21.—The trial here of Thomas Watson, charged with sending obscene matter through the mails, ended abruptly at noon when Federal Judge Rufus E. Foster sustained the motion of the defense quashing the indictment against the Georgia editor.

In directing that the indictment be quashed, Judge Foster said:

"It appears in this indictment that the publications alleged to have been sent through the mails in violation of the law are extracts from a complete article. It is my opinion that the government is required to plead the entire article and is not entitled to pick out a few paragraphs here and there and make them the basis of an indictment."

He added that if the government were allowed to pursue such a course it would be possible to indict a person for sending through the mails a copy of the bible.

than we expect, the utmost loss to the depositors would not exceed 10 per cent.

Greeks Heavy Depositors

In the foreign districts of the city, especially on Market street, men assembled and passed stories relative to the amount of money they had deposited and the length of time it had been there. Many have recently drawn large amounts to send to Greece for the expenses of their relatives who went to war, while others were preparing to take enough out of the bank to pay the return fare of their brothers or friends. It was stated by a Greek resident this morning that over 500 men and women of that nationality had accounts at the Traders bank and that the deposits exceeded $200,000.

One Market street merchant claims to have gone to the bank at 8.30 o'clock yesterday morning with a cloth bag containing a sum of about $200. He said he entered the bank and placed the money at the teller's window and as he turned to go out, an examiner appeared and looked at the bag. His name and address was taken but he was not allowed to take the money from the bank. Many fruit store proprietors in that district claim to have between $500 and $1000 in the bank and although they believe the money will be returned in time they have outstanding accounts that should be settled at once. Poles, Hebrews, Italians and other nationalities claim to be interested and questioned the English-speaking people as to the statements which were placed on the bank doors.

It was stated that the pay of several men who are employed in small manufacturing places in this city was held up on account of the bank being closed. Among the stories circulated this morning was one to the effect that over $2000 was deposited in the bank Saturday night by a local firm who hundreds of mill people placed their weekly earnings there as is their custom after completing a week's work. "Will the Christmas savings club be affected?" a question that is asked by both members of the club and business men who were expecting to do the trade of those who took up this plan of saving money. Many of the merchants believe they have lost business on account of this club but they were in the hope of getting the benefits at Christmas time.

Depositors Gathered at Bank

It was feared there would be trouble in the vicinity of the bank last night shortly after the closing of the mill, for a number of depositors representing several nationalities gathered around the building, and for some time it did really look as though there would be something doing.

Among the crowd were several women and children, who wept, for they feared their savings had been wiped away by the closing of the bank. There were several police officers on the scene and after some time they succeeded in dispersing the crowd, assuring the depositors that the closing of the bank did not mean the loss of their money.

A resident of Belvidere is congratulating himself over the fact that but a few days ago he withdrew from the Traders National bank all his cash, which amounted to over $1000. It is said that he wanted checks bearing his name and that the officials of the bank refused to grant his demand, and therefore, he withdrew his money and placed it at the Lowell Trust company, where he was given the desired checks. Another party, it is said, a man who was so unfortunate as to lose one eye a short time ago, has all his money at the Traders bank, something over $1000. Inasmuch as this man is unable to work, he naturally worries a lot over the result of the closing of the bank.

Three weeks ago the treasurer of the city of Lowell, transferred the sum of $9000 from the Traders bank to other institutions, this being a part of the perpetual care money, placed there by the city treasurer for the cemetery department. It is barely possible that the Traders bank is now of impending conditions at the bank.

The Traders National bank, which was ordered closed yesterday by the controller of currency was organized in 1892. There are forty-seven persons, estates or firms living in Lowell, who held stock in this bank, the heaviest stockholder being a man from Lowell, Alvi T. Baldwin, who is the holder of 1014 shares, a controlling interest.

Altogether there are 70 stockholders, and it is upon them that the losses will fall most heavily. Something under $100,000 of this stock is held in Lowell by the following who are listed at the state house this year as holding stock in the Traders bank: Christopher Baron, 30; Nellie M. D. Hatchelder, 12; Elizabeth C. Egan, 10; Sarah Hattie, 10; Charles S. Dean, 10; Elsie M. Bixby, 5; Henry Boynton, 17; Caroline M. Bramhall, 5; John C. Burke, 10; Ellen Gertrude Burnap, 2; James F. Holders of Stock Unloaded

An examination of the books at the assessors' office this forenoon disclosed the names of a number of former stockholders of the Traders National bank disposed of their stock during the past year, or at least the books show that certain parties were taxed for a certain number of shares during 1912, and that this year their names do not appear on the books as stockholders at the said bank. Among those whose names appear on the 1912 books and not on the 1913 books, are the following with the number of shares they were taxed for: James F. Allen, New York, 554; Laura Brinkbrook, Taunton, 2; estate of Levi Dumas, Lowell, 5; Charles J. Giddens, Lowell, 19; Edward P. Metcalf, Providence, R. I., 200; Eugene G. Russell, Lowell, 1; trustees of P. H. G. Siström, New York, 6; Rhoda Wood, Lowell, 5. John C. Burke last year was listed for 99 shares, but this year his number dropped to 10, according to the books. Alvi T. Baldwin of Watmore, increased the number of his shares from 10 in 1912 to 1014 this year.

FURIOUS WIND AND RAIN STORM

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21.—The eastern shore of Maryland was visited by a furious storm of wind and rain last night. Practically every town along the waterfront suffered severe damage from high water, the tide being the highest experienced in 20 years. In many places the water covered the streets from 12 inches to five feet in depth.

FIRST PHOTOS OF SCENES ATTENDING OPENING OF PANAMA CANAL FOR ACTUAL NAVIGATION

PHOTOS COPYRIGHT 1913 BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

PANAMA, Oct. 21.—President Wilson touched an electric button at the White House and 4,000 miles away hundreds of tons of earth and masonry blew high in the air to let water rush through the Gamboa dike and make the Panama a truly navigable stream. At the same time the huge obstruction caused in the Culebra cut by the recent Curachea slide was blown up, and Uncle Sam's costly waterway was ready for vessels to pass through. In the accompanying photos the Gamboa dike is shown as the dynamite charges scene attending the demolishing of the dike to asunder. The water pouring through the dike after the blowup also appears and at the top is the scene attending the demolishing of the Curachea obstruction. These are the first photos of the subjects received in the United States.

TAMMANY ACTS

Murphy Wants Grand Jury Investigation of Charges

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Charles P. Murphy, Tammany hall leader, yesterday demanded a grand jury investigation of charges alleged to have been made by J. P. Mitchell, Fusionist candidate for mayor, to the effect that the democratic organization leaders were colonization voters for use on election day.

A letter from Mr. Murphy demanding such an investigation was placed before the grand jury by Judge Malone of the court of general sessions.

CHILDREN DEPOSITORS

IN CHRISTMAS SAVINGS DEPARTMENT AT TRADERS BANK GATHERED THERE YESTERDAY

The news of the closing of the Traders National bank quickly spread around the city. Yesterday afternoon a number of school children wandered about the place for several hours, hoping that the large doors of the banking institution would be thrown open and that they would be given an opportunity to draw out their savings.

Several hundred children of this city are losers by the closing of the bank for many are members of the so-called Christmas savings club. This was started last March, and many children took the opportunity offered them to save their pennies by joining the two cent club, which consisted of depositing two cents the first week, and an additional deposit of two cents each week. This noon the no-coin signal was sounded and this afternoon boys and girls flocked to the bank with their deposit cards, and although they were told by the police officers on duty that there was nothing doing, many remained a long time and discussed the situation. There was a time in the course of the afternoon when about every nationality in town was represented near Police avenue, and the main topic of discussion was the financial condition of the bank. The children were told to go home and not to fear, that their money was as safe today as it was the first day it was deposited, and this seemed to relieve their anxiety.

RATE CASE ENDS

The Inter-State Board Settles Famous New York-Boston Case

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The interstate commerce commission yesterday ordered that for 2 years the railroad rates on imports westbound from New York and Boston shall be the same. So ends the celebrated import rate case in which the two cities fought for advantages.

The shut-off caps of the gas and water mains located in some of the public streets are causing considerable annoyance to pedestrians in some localities in Middlesex street, and especially the lower part, appears to be the spot where the worst condition exists. Besides being a great annoyance to people traveling the street several of these pipes rise so far above the level of the sidewalk as to be a positive menace. One can easily twist an ankle by stepping upon some of these obstructions.

SUFFERED AWFUL PAINS

For Sixteen Years. Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Moretown, Vermont.—"I was troubled with pains and irregularities for sixteen years, and was thin, weak and nervous. When I would lie down it would seem as if I was going right down out of sight into some dark hole, and the window curtains had faces that would peek out at me, and when I was out of doors it would seem as if something was going to happen. My blood was poor, my circulation was so bad I would be like a dead person at times. I had female weakness badly, my abdomen was sore and I had awful pains.

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash and they certainly did wonders for me. My troubles disappeared and I am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. W. F. SAWYER, River View Farm, Moretown, Vermont.

Another Case.
Gifford, Iowa.—"I was troubled with female weakness, also with displacement. I had very severe and steady headache, also pain in back and was very thin and tired all the time. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am cured of these troubles. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. IMA MILL SLAGLE, Gifford, Iowa.

FUNERALS

RILEY.—The funeral of Patrick J. Riley, a prominent business man, took place yesterday at 3:30 o'clock from his home, 232 Fairmount street, and was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends, including a number from out of town. M. I., as sub-deacon. Present in the sanctuary was the pastor, Rev. Lawrence P. Tighe, O. M. I. The choir under the direction of Mr. Charles P. Smith sang the Gregorian mass, the solo being sustained by Mr. Smith and Mr. John Dalton, Mrs. Hugh Walker presiding at the organ. There was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes, including a pillow inscribed "Husband," and pillow inscribed "Papa," wife and children, large mound inscribed "Brother," brothers of deceased. SEVERE STORM

Wrecks Wires and Trees in New England—Sun for 1st Time in 10 Days

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Tangled wires, prostrated trees and other inland damage marked the wake today of the Ohio storm, the tail of which swept New England yesterday on its way down the St. Lawrence valley. It was the second severe disturbance to visit New England within a week. Unlike its predecessor it expended its fury inland instead of on the coast, although strong winds prevailed from Nantucket to Eastport.

The storm centre was well down to the gulf of St. Lawrence today, but as usual it was followed afterward by strong westerly winds which heralded the western cold wave.

Wire conditions in New England today were the worst since last winter, due, it was stated, to fallen trees and limbs and broken poles.

Several cities, such as Concord, Montpelier and Rutland were telegraphically marooned for several hours early in the day. Small freshets were reported in many of the river towns in Vermont and New Hampshire and the gate completed the gripping of the country. Many farmers who had let their apples for a few more days of ripening found a crop of windfalls today.

The storm cleared the air, however, and the sun broke through the clouds in southeastern Massachusetts for the first time in ten days.

BRITISH MILITANT SUFFRAGE LEADER; PLACE WHERE SHE WAS DETAINED

MRS. PANKHURST ARRIVING AT ELLIS ISLAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—International interest has been aroused by the detention of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the noted British militant suffragist leader, at Ellis Island by the Immigration authorities. She was ordered deported as a person having been convicted of a crime, and her counsel appealed to the authorities at Washington. The president called a conference, at which all the facts in the case were laid before him by Commissioner General of Immigration Caminetti, and finally she was released and admitted to American soil on her own recognition.

SULZER TO RUN POLITICAL DISORDERS

Nomination for the Assembly by New York Progressives

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—William Sulzer, impeached as governor of the state, was nominated for the assembly last night by the progressives of the sixth assembly district. Mr. Sulzer, in 1889, began his public career as a member of this branch of the state legislature. Mr. Sulzer has agreed to accept the nomination, it was announced at the meeting, where he was chosen as the candidate. Max Steindler, progressive leader in the sixth district, who placed the former governor's name in nomination, said Mr. Sulzer reached him by telephone from Albany inquiring if he had been designated. He said he asked Mr. Sulzer if he would accept and Mr. Sulzer replied he would gladly do so.

Athletes and Athletics

In spite of all the adverse criticism which arose over the administration of James O'Rourke, president, secretary and treasurer of the Eastern association, he was re-elected to the office yesterday afternoon. This Lowell-Hartford series got both he and Murnane in bad with the sporting public. We wonder if Murnane will also come through in his fight for New England league control.

Freddie Welsh got some surprise last night in his bout with Mil Taylor of Indianapolis. Welsh was awarded the fight as the referee claimed the blow which put the Englishman away was foul. The holder of the British lightweight title was a badly used up pugilist when he reached his dressing room.

Several thousand baseball fans turned out yesterday to welcome back Pitcher Bush of the Athletics on his return to Braintree, Mass., his home town. The town went wild in the demonstration which greeted the world's series hero, the owners of the factories closing them so as to allow their operatives to attend the celebration.

The Giants took the second game of the trip from the White Sox yesterday in Springfield, Ill., when the teams met on a diamond partially covered with snow. In spite of the rugged weather, Gov. Dunne of Illinois pitched the first ball of the game.

Ad Wolgast has got some sparring partner in the Greek, Antonio. While mixing it up with him yesterday Ad received a solid body smash and after waking up discovered that two of his ribs had been fractured by the blow. If Antonio can hit as hard a wallop as he has displayed on the old warhorse, he had better hang out his own shingle.

Haverhill high is liable to prove a big stumbling block for all the school-boys this season. The team is heavy as well as fast and is composed of ten veterans. Boston critics are already picking them as prospective champions and the prediction seems to have ample foundation.

The Tufts game Saturday will give the Harvard and Yale coaches a line on what the Army team can really do this season. Tufts has a team which is not to be despised and the soldiers will have to show signs of real football to pull out a creditable victory.

Eddie Murphy should have no difficulty in defeating Jimmy Duffy in St. Louis tomorrow night. Murphy is better in a contest of short duration when matched with a boy of Duffy's type and should outpoint him badly in all of the eight rounds.

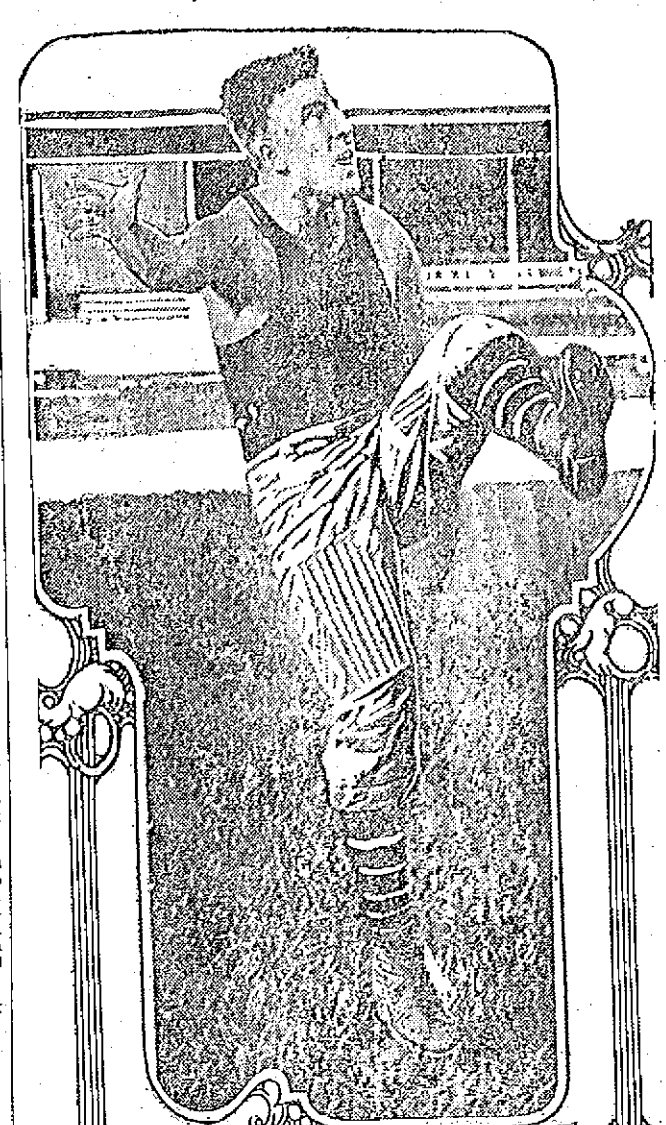

Hobe Baker is developing into a kicker of the first water. The Princeton captain has always booted the ball some but has never before had the attention given him in this line that he is receiving this season. Princeton is hard up for a good punter who can hold his own with the other large college booters and Baker's present form is hailed with thanksgiving by the coaches.

Sherwood Magee, brother of our own Jimmy Magee, will go into the movies this winter. Magee will be one of the actors of a troupe in the middle west who are putting on several large films. The star outlander of the Phillies says that he prefers the movies to the vaudeville stage.

John H. Farrell, president of the New York state league, is probably the most popular man connected with baseball throughout the country. In nearly every other league the managers and owners are struggling to displace some officer of their organization but Farrell manages everything with a genial smile and all of the owners know that he is ready to step down at a moment's notice if he is not wanted by even a minority.

The first session of the National commission which was supposed to have been held yesterday in Chicago, was postponed on account of the absence of Messrs. Herrmann and Lynch. Today's meeting promises to be a rather warm affair if all the proposed questions come up for discussion.

slow to manifest their appreciation in applause. The motion pictures this week are as usual of a pleasing high standard and include the mutual weekly, a drama and a farce comedy.

Patrons of the theatre are sure of being pleased this week, and all will do well to order their seats in advance as the sales are very large.

KEITH'S THEATRE

Last night's performance at the B. F. Keith theatre was very largely attended and at the closing of the program an expression of satisfaction appeared upon every face, for the bill in one of the best ever presented at this house.

The play itself was commendably presented by the Merrimack Square players. Walter Scott Weeks is seen as "Tom Silverton," a young man who had come to Lowell where he was being sought on a false murder charge. He goes to Marlowe, Indiana, where he becomes addicted to drink from brandy engine scene in the third act, when "Tom Silverton," the hero of the piece, pilots an engine through a sea of flames in a prairie fire.

PLAY BASEBALL PROSPECTIVE ATHLETICS

National Game Leads in Recreations After School in Waltham

WALTHAM, Oct. 21.—Thirty-four per cent of the boys and 50 per cent of the girls in grades six to nine in the high school of this city attend the moving picture shows each week, according to the report about to be issued by the recreation survey committee that has spent much time in compiling statistics from brief compositions written by the children of the public schools on the subject of how they amuse themselves.

Play Baseball
Less than half the girls mention outdoor play as their means of recreation. Many of the high school girls mention baseball as their principal game. Of the girls, 40 per cent mention music, whereas sewing, embroidery and other fancy work are scarcely mentioned at all. Of the boys, 74 per cent speak of music.

Home recreations are conspicuous by their absence, according to the committee. Baseball is more popular than all other games combined with the boys. With the exception of baseball, the boys mention no other game or sport that requires organization in its play.

Tag, hide-and-seek, hit-the-stick, chase, hare and hound are the other games indulged in by the boys.

Reading is very popular with the boys and girls in the grammar schools. Very few of the high school pupils mention it. Mechanics and handwork among certain boys show very profitable ways of spending time indulged in by a few. The recorded references, such as "making an electric switch" and "making things from wood," come from the same boys that are fond of baseball.

The recreation survey committee is concerned itself with such questions as: Have home, neighborhood and public provisions for recreation kept up with the needs, and are the recreation facilities at home normal in amount and attractiveness.

ALGER POPULAR HERE

Freddie Yelle of Taunton will make his first appearance in Lowell Friday evening when he meets that clever boy from Cambridge, Geo. Alger. Alger is no stranger to the Lowell public as he has appeared here on several occasions. He is a clever two handed fighter as he proved when he earned a draw with Gilbert Gallant last year. Gallant was nicknamed an easy winner as he lost to Alger. The members of the Alger surprise the members by more than holding his own. He also shaded Freddie Duffy here in a ten round bout. Yelle has not been very successful this season but expects to be New England's lightweight champion before the season closes. actors last night by the frequent and prolonged applause given. Frank Palmer, booked as "Comedy Cartoonist," is all that is expected and he is as clever with the crayon as he is with his witty tongue. Lora and Payne are two acrobats of renown and they perform feats that are unsurpassable. The opening of their act is a little carried out by four little Japs who use their pedal extremities almost as well as their hands. The act is certainly well worth seeing.

If one were to judge by the applause given the performers, Jim Halley and Jessie Noble, who present the little sketch, "The Lady and the Hero," would be the best of the night. These two clever people entertained the house charmingly for fully 20 minutes. Their sketch is decidedly funny and they know how to handle the material. The girl kept their audience in laughter from curtain rise to curtain fall and they were recalled several times. Mr. Halley's makeup is one of the best ever seen on a local stage, and he plays with such ease that one is inclined to believe the piece real.

Another clever sketch, which is well rendered, is that entitled "Hello Sally," presented by John T. Ray and Miss Grace Hilliard. Both are comedians of the first order, and their act is original. After the sketch, a noted song writer, puts on a little sketch with Miss Dorothy Nord, and the affair, which is a sort of a musical act, is very catchy. The play is clever, and they are heard to advantage.

Hamilton and Barnes are good singers, clever dancers and they have witty sayings by the winks, which have a way of their own to entertain, which is very pleasing. Their sketch, although of the old type, is welcomed by Lowell theatregoers, who showed their appreciation of the skill of these two

What Sports the Lowell Sporting Public Would Appreciate—A Summary of Local Athletics

Lowell, and in fact all of this part of New England, is ripe again for the installation of basketball and polo leagues and it seems surprising that something of the sort has not been initiated this season by some of the men interested in the promotion of athletics. Lowell and vicinity has been out of both of these sports for some years now and it looks as though either basketball or polo or both would be a paying proposition.

The sporting public left hard for polo when it was first staged here and professional basketball was likewise popular. Both branches of sport are exciting enough to keep the crowd on their toes, as the saying goes, and both are open games which give the fans an opportunity to follow every play made.

A few weeks ago several men who are interested in athletics came here and looked over the ground with the object in mind of forming a polo league. Lowell was looked to as the natural center of such a league and a franchise would have to be given this city were a league to prosper in this locality.

For some reason, however, the proposition was passed up for this season. Just why the powers that be were discouraged at the outlook was not divulged but some unforeseen obstacles must have arisen in the path of the promoters.

New England Lightweight Title

At present Eddie Murphy, the South Boston, lightweight, appears to have earned a fairly clear title to the New England lightweight championship. Through a series of elimination bouts at the Hotel A. A. Murphy has come out with flying colors and such men as Joe Egan, Gilbert Gallant and Matty Baldwin have beaten the dust beneath the slinging blows and uncanny cleverness of the Peninsula boxer.

There is one man, however, which many of the boxing fans think could take Murphy's measure. Ray Wood, the Fall River Bearcat, has many followers as a prospective champion of New England.

Wood and Murphy are just the opposite in their style within the roped arena. Wood is one of the kind who never backs down. The man who could make Wood halt for an instant while in a bout would have him whipped for he would not know how to act on the defensive. His entire repertoire is body work at close range and he wastes into an opponent with both gloves protecting his chin and body until close enough to cut loose with those terrific body punches.

Murphy, on the other hand, is a boxer. Don't imply by this statement that the Boston boy can't hit for his can and many are the boys who have found this fact out too late. Murphy's greatest asset as a boxer is the tenacity with which he fans in his left hand, his blows going in so fast that it is difficult to follow their progress.

A great many fans think that a boxer with a good left hand can make a monkey out of Wood. On the other side about the same percentage of the game's patrons are certain that Wood can whip any boxer in the ring. A meeting between these two exponents of the squared circle would be the greatest lightweight card that could be produced before a boxing crowd in New England.

Track Athletics
With two such splendidly adapted floors as the high school annex and the Westford street armory here in Lowell it seems a pity that the fans who care for track athletics are unable to witness more athletic carnivals by the spiked shoe performers.

The high school track meets are all right so far as they go and many of the local schoolboy meets are exciting and well worth while attending but there are many good amateur athletes in Lowell who are not in the school-boy ranks. If it were possible to arrange some sort of city championship events on the wooden path during the winter months whereby every local athlete with aspirations for track and field honors could jump into the game, either the annex or the armory would not be adequate to hold the crowd which would take in the affair.

Wrestling
Wrestling is also a sport which has not been seen in Lowell for many moons. To say that the game has been played out would be to utter a falacy for the Boston sporting public are patronizing the game as never before and it is almost a certainty that wrestling would prove as popular here as in the Hub. The bad feature about the mat game is that many promoters are not on the level with the patrons of the game. Any man who conceives the idea that he can foot the fans who pay their money at the gate to watch a bona fide exhibition of grappling skill is making the mistake of his life. He can fool them for a short while, but the truth will come out before he has progressed very far and the game is gone for every square promoter as well as for himself. If the right party who had the confidence of the public in Lowell should take up wrestling this winter here and bring on some really good performers he could make the game pay well.

THE GREAT ENGINE SCENE FROM "THE NINETY AND NINE" BEING PRESENTED AT THE MERRIMACK SQ. THEATRE

AMUSEMENT NOTES

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

One of the most exciting pictures that has been seen in this city for some time is the Kaleem feature at the Opera House today entitled, "The Railroad Inspector's Peril." The action of the play takes place on the top of a freight train which is running at the rate of 40 miles an hour. The whole company, even to the women members, go through the work as if they were upon the stage of any theatre. It is without doubt the best feature that has been released from the house of Kaleem this year, and must be seen to be appreciated.

"NAZIMOVA" IN "BELLA DONNA"
Charles Bryant who plays Doctor Isaacson with Madame Nazimova is an Englishman who was brought to this country by Charles Frohman, especially for the part he is now playing. Mr. Bryant was the original Mahmud Baroudi when "Bella Donna" was produced in London by Sir George Alexander at the St. James' theatre. There is a small question but that the heroine of this play is one of the wickedest women the stage has seen in a long time, but by her act, Nazimova is said to make this creature of impulse most fascinating. With the same company that was seen during her successful run at the Empire theatre, New York, last season and with the big four act production, which is said to be one of the most elaborate and atmospheric that Charles Frohman has ever put out, Nazimova is to present "Bella Donna" at the Lowell Opera House, next Saturday evening, Oct. 25th, for one night only.

THE MERRIMACK SQUARE
A thrilling four act drama entitled "The Ninety and Nine" is the offering at the Merrimack Square Theatre this week, and it was presented yesterday afternoon and evening with decided success attending the efforts of the Merrimack Square players. A little credit should go to Howard Sidney for the manner in which the scenes have been arranged, especially the spectacular engine scene in the third act, when "Tom Silverton," the hero of the piece, pilots an engine through a sea of flames in a prairie fire.

The play itself was commendably presented by the Merrimack Square players. Walter Scott Weeks is seen as "Tom Silverton," a young man who had come to Lowell where he was being sought on a false murder charge. He goes to Marlowe, Indiana, where he becomes addicted to drink from brandy engine scene in the third act, when "Tom Silverton," the hero of the piece, pilots an engine through a sea of flames in a prairie fire.

HEAR TAX CASES

Millions of Dollars for Government Depend Upon Outcome

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Millions of dollars for the federal government depend upon the outcome of the corporation tax cases, up for argument today before the supreme court.

In the case of the Stratton's Independence limited of Colorado the court was called upon to decide whether the sale price of mineral taken from a mine is the income subject to the corporation tax or whether it is to be considered as invested capital converted into cash.

The court was ready to hear argument also in the New York street railway receivership cases in which is involved the question of whether the government may collect the tax from the income of insolvent corporations in the hands of receivers.

STILL ON STRIKE

Gov. Ammons in Trinidad to Investigate the Conditions in Mines

DENVER, Col., Oct. 21.—Governor Ammons went to Trinidad today to investigate conditions in the southern coal fields where several thousand miners are on strike. Accompanying the governor were Major General Lee of the Colorado National Guard and Attorney General Farrar. A conference was held yesterday between State Auditor Kennehan and a number of bankers, relative to financing the state militia in the event of its being ordered to the strike zone. At

EARLY CURRENCY ACTION

It now becomes evident that President Wilson's wish for an early settlement of the currency question is bearing fruit. Such notable democratic senators as O'Gorman, Reed and Hitchcock were in favor of delay at first but they are not now so strenuously opposed to its immediate consideration. It is being seen that if the currency question is held over, the entire program of business legislation which the president has laid out for the immediate future will be disturbed. He intended the tariff as the first step in the ultimate freedom of business from trammels of needless and faulty laws, and the settlement of the currency question will go far towards completing the great reforms promised in the democratic platform.

The president is not in favor of continuing the present fruitless committee hearings but favors a caucus which he predicts would bring about the favorable results in the senate which it did in the house. He is being cheered by evidences of a strong republican support. The special representative of the New York World which is making a special study of the currency question, states that four out of the five republican members of the committee have expressed themselves as ready to sign a favorable report on the bill, provided "a few slight changes" were made, because of the "unquestioned benefits that the measure as a whole would bring to business." This view has been taken to the president by Senator Nelson, the ranking republican on the committee. It, therefore, becomes evident that the bill is not being regarded as a strictly party measure.

Secretary McAdoo has just made public a letter in which he scores those who have been using the pending currency bill as a pretext for selling their bonds below par market price. "I cannot understand," he says, "why any national bank should sell its bonds at present quotations. Certainly there is nothing in the pending legislation to justify such action." He refers especially to items which he had seen or which had been called to his attention calculated to cause apprehension about the "2 per cent bonds."

Secretary McAdoo declares his belief in the readiness of the bankers to do all in their power to co-operate with the government as soon as the currency bill becomes law. He says:

"I have no sympathy with those who say that the bankers are so lacking in patriotism that they will refuse to accept and obey a law enacted in the interest of all the people of the country. Such statements are a reflection upon the bankers. I believe that they will be the first to come forward and help the government make the new system a success as soon as the senate and house act finally and the president approves the measure."

That the bill will give them ample room for this friendly cooperation is still more strongly asserted as follows:

"I can see no ground for apprehension by the banks about the currency bill or its effects. I am confident that the measure when passed will be acceptable to the country, and that it will prove of enduring benefit to the banks, to the general business interest and to all the people."

It is very gratifying that the currency bill is not being regarded as a strictly party measure. All parties are pledged to prevent panics and provide better currency facilities and the pending bill will do both. The New York World says editorially that it may be "faulty in detail" but that it "would achieve the ends sought." As the ends sought are the freedom of business from the restrictions of one-sided banking laws, it is to be hoped that the pending currency bill will be passed without delay.

CLUBS OR THE HOME

The accusation that American people are becoming more addicted yearly to the club habit and losing the home tendencies is not a new one. Neither is it a new assertion that they are leaving their children more and more in the hands of external guides such as the churches, clubs, fraternal societies, and delegating to these external agencies the duties that properly belong in the home. One of the latest to make such an assertion is Rev. Edwin H. Van Etten, assistant rector of Trinity church, Boston, who made a stirring address on that subject last Sunday.

It is well that we have boys' clubs and uplift societies for the young. They are sources of unknown good, and their influence is wide. But they cannot take the place of the home with its surroundings and influences. In the life of the average individual when time dulls many impressions and when college days and business life stir us but little, the deepest and holiest impressions are twined round memories of early home life even though some of its privations were too great to be softened by time. Parents who fail to realize the value of home influences are leaving a void in the nature of their children that no other experience can fill. As the Rev. Mr. Van Etten pointed out, the clubs or churches may teach many things better than they could be taught at home, but they cannot give that feeling of responsibility which should obtain in the relations of children and their parents.

Another modern tendency which the distinguished preacher regretted is the agitation for sex instruction in the schools. He said that there is a time in the lives of boys and girls when parents must explain many things to them and he argued that matters so learned would not seem suggestive or vulgar to the young mind. What is needed, he said, is a moral will power rather than sex instruction, and no number of school lectures will develop this strength of character. He was very uncompromising in his attitude of condemnation and declared: "A father or mother has a right to be suspicious of anyone who gives their child such education, unless the matter has been discussed by them and the informant, and their permission given."

THE TRADERS BANK

The insolvency of a bank causes a thrill of consternation in any community, for in no other calamity of trade or finance are the fortunes of more people affected so speedily. The closing of the local Traders bank, therefore, has been the main topic of conversation locally since the news became public and unfortunately it has caused a great deal of mental suffering, for owing to the high rate of interest offered in its savings department and its wide advertisements of unusual advantage, it was especially patronized by those who had but a little to invest, but whose little was their all. It has long been known in local financial circles, that the Traders bank while offending against no law, was not strictly complying with the spirit of the regulations governing the segregation of savings banks from national or other banks. The public, however, is little interested in the technical aspect of such problems and deposit their money unquestioning so long as everything is apparently safe and the interest high.

Some few years ago the Sun, in an article on banks and banking, said that there was one bank in Lowell which was not complying with the laws enacted to protect the money of depositors. In savings banks, strictly speaking, the regulations are very stringent regarding the uses to which the bank may put the money deposited, but in the Traders savings bank, the deposits were used, as now appears, in ill advised investment if not in speculation.

It is well that in its present embarrassment the bank does not involve any other local bank. The weakness in its policy regarding a "savings" department kept the other banks of the city aloof and in this they are to be commended for their prudence and caution. Apart from the positive loss to depositors, bank failures are to be regretted because of their effect in causing many people to distrust all banking institutions. There is no reason for this general distrust locally as the failure of the Traders bank but throws into brighter relief the soundness of most of our banking institutions. With the passing of the currency bill it is to be hoped that no such bank as the Traders will be allowed to exist and the sooner such protection comes the better will it be for all the people of this country.

RITUAL MURDER

Let us forget that Russia is still far from civilization as we know it, comes the world celebrated Belles trial with the Russian government striving might and main to prove that the Jews of Kiev killed a boy for the purpose of using human blood in their ritual of one of their religious ceremonies. It is not strange that there is so much Jewish persecution in a land of an ignorant peasantry which is absolutely subject to the despotic rule of the czar. Ritual murder is an old cry and almost all religions have suffered from the accusation at one time or another, but nowhere but in Russia would it be made the basis for a legal trial in this tolerant and enlightened age.

It is well that so many Christian sects have expressed their horror at the Russian method of stirring up race antipathy, and it is also well that America should not be silent. Our Christianity has its roots too deeply in the olden Jewish dispensation and too many of the Jewish race have come here and made good citizens for our people to be indifferent when in their religion they are accused of nameless horrors. The opinion of the world should penetrate the circle of superstition and ignorance at Kiev and free the unfortunate Belles.

In every home there should be a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery. Ready for immediate use when any member of the family contracts a cold or a cough. Prompt use will stop the spread of sickness. S. Seen and Heard Delegate J. K. Kalafanole of Hawaii, known to his friends as Prince Cupid, tells of the experience of a Los Angeles divine who was making a trip on horseback up the mountain of Halakala, one of the famous summits of the Hawaiian islands.

It appears that the minister was fond of his pipe and stopping at a little store which was run by a venerable Chinese, inquired if he could buy some tobacco. Very gravely the answer came back:

"No, no, no, no smoke, no no drink, no Christian."

The old black "mammy" of a South Side family was recently presented with an oil portrait of herself done by the hand of her young mistress. When the portrait was exhibited to the family a young son, after a wink at the artist, proceeded to criticize it unmercifully.

"Mammy," he declared, "that doesn't look a bit like you."

"Now, Jimmy, you are sure pokin' for that's a living image of me a-fore Ah los' mah hair."

Business men who have places of business near the corner of Central and Merrimack streets and many people whose daily affairs bring them past this locality are complaining about the unorthodox poles made by the trolley cars as they round the curve on their way from Central street into Merrimack street. Note of this general annoyance was made in The Sun some ten days ago and up to yesterday there was a marked improvement but the men with the oil can is again in great demand at the track curves around Merrimack Square.

DID CHILD WAKE UP CROSS OR FEVERISH?

Look, Mother! If Tongue is Coated, Give "California Syrup of Figs"

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a tea-spoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again.

All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Counterfeits are being sold here. Don't be fooled!

THE HILLS
Now men there ha that love the plain
With yellow cornland drest,
And others love the sleepy vales
Where lazy cattle rest;
But some men love the ancient hills,
And these have chosen best.

For in the hills a man may go
Forever as he list
And see a jolt of distant worlds,
Where streams and valleys twist
A league below, and seem to hold
The whole earth in his fist.

Or if he tread the dales beneath
A new delight is his
For every crest a kingdom-edge
Whose conqueror he is
And every fell the frontier
Of unguessed empires.

And when the clouds are on the land
In shelter he may lie,
And watch above the misty glens
The rain go marching by,
Along the silent banks of fells
Whose heads are in the sky.

And in the hills are crystal tarns
As deep as maiden's eyes,
About whose edge at mid-noon
Lies a heavy sunshine lid,
And deep therein the troll-folk dwell,
Can make men wondrous wise.

The gorge of spring is like a host
Of warriors in the field,
And summer heather like a cloak
Of purple on the wild,
While autumn's russet bracken is
Monks' liver of old.

Our lord the sun knows every land,
But most he loves the fells;
At morning break his earliest torch
Upon their summits dwells,
At eve he lingers there to catch
The sound of vesper bells.

The men who dwell among the hills
Have eyes both strong and kind,
For as they go about their works
In heaven's sun and wind,
The spirit of the established hills
Gives them the surest mind.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

GOOD NEWS

New York World: Announcement that the New Haven road has succeeded in arranging terms with its employees without a collision that would tie up the road is about the best item it has contributed to the news for many a day. Having now shown ability to run the road, the new management may be expected to show it can run the trains.

OUR IMMIGRANTS

Boston Post: In his address at the City Club, Friday evening, Dr. Elliot is reported to say, in effect, that the state of mind among our people today is that of contempt for persons of foreign races now entering this country. Dr. Elliot protested against this sentiment; he characterized it as a mistake, and he predicted, by inference, that the American race in the near future will be reinforced by the introduction and incorporation of the strong men and women now seeking entrance as immigrants.

CATHOLIC CONGRESS

Boston Herald: Although the organization of the Catholic church is a marvel of preparedness, here in this country the work of presenting to the people the needs of the missions, both here and abroad, has not been effective as the more zealous Catholics had wished. Many have noted a confusion of appeals and a duplication of work. It will doubtless be one of the results of this congress that the needs of the various mission fields will henceforth be set before American Catholics in more definite and clear-cut manner.

CALLING A HALT

Lewiston Sun: First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill renews his offer to Germany to let up for a year on their ship-building programs. If the offer were accepted and the two great rivals delayed for one year the great increase in warships it would be possible to reduce military expenditure. It will be easy for the other governments to make corresponding reductions.

OUR PHILIPPINE POLICY

Johnstown Democrat: The Philippines now have reason to feel that they have in a large measure become responsible for their own future welfare. They have an incentive for which to work. The leaders realize that they must make good, that they must come through. To a much larger degree than before their destiny is in their own hands. True it is that they are not yet leading alone. They are still in leading strings. The grip of this country has not been relaxed. But for all that the Philippines are given a chance to use their own legs. The natives are now in a majority upon the Philippine commission.

A KIND SUGGESTION

Fall River Globe: If, as an eminent authority states, the details of fashion in the near future, are for fewer clothes for women, two things should be agreed on as soon as possible for the best interests of all concerned. The climate ought to be made milder, or the sea bathing season lengthened.

CARRY RED FLAG

Men Fined in Boston—Socialists to Fight the Case in Courts

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—A red flag was unfurled in the first session of the police court yesterday when Sergeant John Anderson of the Lagrange street station was requested by Judge Wentworth to allow him to see the flag.

On one of the flags were the words "Liberty or Death" and on the other appeared "Boston Socialist Party."

The flags were carried in the parade Saturday night. It was alleged, by William R. Henry, 41, of Bowler street, Lynn, and Joseph Melrovitz, 25, business manager of The Leader, a socialist paper.

Both men pleaded not guilty, but were found guilty and fined $25 each. They were given, through their attorney, John Weaver Sherman, until today to secure bonds, as he announced that the socialist party intended to make a test case of the right to carry the red flag through the streets on parade.

HEARING ON STREETS

SEVERAL STREET AND SEWER PETITIONS ARGUED BEFORE COMMISSIONER DONNELLY

Commissioner James E. Donnelly of the streets and highways department conducted a hearing on street and sewer petitions last night at city hall, and with the exception of one, all the petitions were referred without any remonstrance.

The hearing was opened at 7.30 o'clock and the first matter brought up was a petition by Omer J. Smith that a concrete sidewalk be laid on the southerly side of Crawford street, in front of premises at the corner of Fourth avenue. There was no remonstrance.

Walter G. Charles asked that a concrete sidewalk be laid on the northerly side of Crawford street in front of No. 51. No remonstrance.

John Conroy appeared in favor of the petition that Bartlett street be macadamized from 109 easterly, and that edgestones be laid on the southerly side of said street from Alder street easterly a distance of 150 feet. No opposition.

George H. Lussier petitioned that a sidewalk of edgestones and cinders be laid at the corner of Moody street and Sixth avenue, a distance of 85 feet on Moody street and 95 feet on Sixth avenue. No remonstrance.

George N. Reid asked that a sewer be laid on Daniels street from Andover street northerly a distance of about 200 feet. The petition was also favored by F. D. Russell and Thomas Johnson. John Robertson, although admitting that the sewer will be a benefit to houses in the locality, declared himself as being opposed to paying sewer assessment, and when he was told that the assessment would be one cent a square foot for the frontage multiplied by the depth, he withdrew his objections.

Southworth Farrington said he will have no use for the sewer and he does not feel he should pay any assessment.

Wm. A. Sheehan favored the acceptance of Bourne street, from Otis street to that portion of said street already accepted, and that said street be macadamized and edgestones laid on both sides thereof. Others in favor were Carl G. Phil, Allan Hallas and Patrick Craig.

F. A. Fisher, appearing for the Lowell Blackberry, believed in the improvement, but said it will necessitate the seeking of damages from the city for the removal of two buildings which are now in full use. It will cost $2000 to move the buildings back.

The hearing adjourned at 8.10 o'clock.

The county commissioners were at the court house yesterday morning.

Chairman Gould was absent, owing to illness, while Messrs. Madden and Williams were present. As there was no business on hand, the two commissioners inspected the court house and discussed the matter of improvements. The condition of the weather caused the postponement of a proposed trip to some of the towns to investigate the condition of the highways. It is probable that before long, some improvements will be made in the court house grounds.

CURRENCY BILL HEARING

Resumed With Victor Morawetz Before Committee—Pres. Wilson Not Opposed to Changes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—While the hearings on the currency bill before the senate banking committee will not end before Saturday amendments have the attention of the members.

President Wilson's intention that he will not object to changes in the personnel of the federal reserve board and a reduction in the number of regional reserve banks has made it practically certain that the desires of many generators to make these changes will be carried out with prospect of administration approval.

Many other important modifications will be taken up when committee work begins on the measure next week.

A plan to open the stock of reserve banks to public subscription will be considered.

Another suggested amendment would limit reserve banks in their clearings to checks drawn by banks, leaving the present collection system for personal checks unchanged.

The provision limiting the dividends to be paid by reserve banks to five per cent. may be increased to six and the provision that after the accumulation of a 20 per cent. surplus all profits of the reserve banks except the dividend shall be distributed; 40 per cent. to the government and 60 per cent. to the stockholders may be changed to give all the surplus profits to the government. The problem of whether the federal reserve banks are to be allowed to enter the open market to buy or sell commercial paper in competition with other banks to maintain the discount rate also will be considered.

Victor Morawetz of New York, who was before the committee yesterday, resumed discussion of the bill when the hearing was taken up by the committee today.

MEXICAN AFFAIRS

Policy of the British Government Differs From That of United States

LONDON, Oct. 21.—In his discussion of Mexican affairs today with the American ambassador, Walter H. Page, Sir Edward Grey, declined to bind the British government to any particular policy after the elections in Mexico. In this respect, therefore, the policy of the British government differs from that of the United States.

The British attitude is that matters should be left alone until after the election and that future action should be based on their result.

Ambassador Page explained to the British foreign secretary at some length the policy of the United States and Sir Edward in reply pointed out that nothing thus far had occurred to change the British view that recognition of the provisional government in Mexico was the correct policy.

LAND FOR SQUARE

Can Be Had For $150 Near Edison Cemetery Gate—Purchase of Land Favored

The recommendation of the city beautiful committee of the Lowell board of trade to the municipal council relative to the purchase of the small square of land located at the junction of Gorham and Carlisle streets opposite the Edison cemetery is greatly favored by people in that district as a means of providing the open space necessary in front of the cemetery. The assessed value of the land is about $150 and the owners are willing to dispose of the property for that figure. The property is owned by the Whiting heirs and they have received an offer far in excess of the assessed value from an individual who desires to locate a monument and stone-cutting establishment on the property. This property is located at one of the important gateways of the city and no better impression of the city can be given of the streets as they enter the city than by the appearance of the property.

TREES Felled BY WIND

HEAVY WINDS OF LAST NIGHT CAUSED CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE IN THE OUTSKIRTS OF CITY

Shortly after 11 o'clock last night the clouds drifted away and a high wind blew, causing considerable damage to trees and bushes in the outskirts of the city. On the commons branches were blown to the ground, while in Belvidere and the Highlands parts of the streets were strewn across the streets this morning. The rain which fell yesterday and during the preceding weeks made the streets very muddy and disagreeable for those who were obliged to drive over them. However, the wind today dried up the pools of water and at the present time they are in fair condition.

EATON CASE

Continued

Eaton, whose murder is charged to the widow, was charged and that she feared he would poison her mother. Mrs. Eaton had told the witness in detail of the illness and death of Admiral Eaton and subsequently had said to her:

"It is too bad the admiral died. If he had lived two or three years longer we could have gone to Europe."

Admiral Eaton and his wife always appeared friendly, Mrs. Pitt said when cross examined.

Mrs. Eaton Replies

Another neighbor, Mrs. William Magoun, told the court of a strange preparation which Mrs. Eaton said the admiral had mixed for June, a daughter of Mrs. Eaton by a former marriage.

The witness, according to the witness, remembered what Mrs. Eaton said and told her contained soap, ketchup and either pepper or salt. This caused Mrs. Eaton to smile.

Mrs. Magoun said she never saw any traces of insanity about the admiral. A blockland tradesman, Charles E. Edice, testified to Mrs. Eaton's frequent riding of family troubles.

A Mr. Cottrill of Hingham who kept house for the Eatons for a time when Mrs. Eaton was not living with the admiral testified that she had never seen any signs of liquor on the admiral nor any indication that he was of unsound mind.

Going to Panama

A month before his death Admiral Eaton was planning to take Mrs. Eaton with him on a trip to Panama according to Samuel Baker, a Rockland optician. Baker testified that in February last the admiral told him that in 1871 acting under a commission from President Grant, he had made a survey for a canal route across the isthmus and that he looked with pleasure on the trip that he and Mrs. Eaton were to take to see the completed work.

Baker also said that Mrs. Eaton had asked him to assist her in having the admiral committed to an insane asylum. She complained to the witness that her husband was dabbling in poisons and drugs and she feared he would cause the death of members of the household.

John L. Bosh of Rockland said that Mrs. Eaton had told him her husband was trying to poison her and that although she sprinkled talcum on the stairs she was unable to track him to the place where he concealed his drugs.

Never Tried to Flee

Mrs. Grace L. Booth and Mrs. Maud Powers, twin sisters employed in a bakery at Rockland patronized by the Eatons testified that Admiral Eaton was always gentlemanly, always in a hurry to leave the bakery and that he never tried to flee with them. It had been brought out earlier in the trial that Mrs. Eaton had complained of her husband's alleged attentions to the sisters.

Frank S. Alger, a newspaperman of Rockland, told of several conversations with Mrs. Eaton. On the night that Prof. Whitney of the Harvard medical school reported that the adopted son of the Eatons had died from natural causes and not by the administration of poison Alger carried the news to the Eaton home. When he told of the chemist's findings, Mrs. Eaton remarked in the admiral's presence, "There must be some mistake."

At another time the admiral told of his objection to his having June in the household because of a story she had circulated about him.

Alger told of meeting Mrs. Eaton on a train, when she complained of her fears of her husband because of his experimenting with poisons. She said the admiral was like an infant, but that she feared for her life.

Alger said he did not consider Admiral Eaton insane but thought he showed certain peculiarities of speech and manner, but, perhaps, to long service in the navy.

RECEPTION BY CARDINAL

Prelates of Catholic Church Were Guests of His Eminence—Mayor Fitzgerald Extends Welcome

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Prelates of the Catholic church assembled in impressive numbers in the ball-room of the Copley Plaza last night at a reception tendered them by Cardinal O'Connell at the close of the first business day of the second Catholic missionary congress in America.

The cardinal made it a truly informal reception, delivering a brief talk in pleasant vein, and then receiving and chatting with the prelates and other delegates.

Mayor Fitzgerald, introduced by the cardinal as a mayor whom all no doubt already knew, gave an address expressing the welcome of the city to the delegates.

The reception came at the end of a busy day for the congress delegates. Morning and afternoon sessions had been held in Symphony hall, with addresses by leaders of the church in this country. The congress had settled down to real work and had taken up the problems of missionary work which had been called for the purpose of solving.

The ballroom was decorated for the reception. A throne of the cardinalate, surmounted by the American colors, stood on the side of the room opposite the entrance. The guests, 500 in all, were ushered in under the direction of members of the Cathedral Guild, and at 8 o'clock the cardinal, accompanied by the mayor and the Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. J. Spillane, rector of the cathedral, entered under escort of members of the Cathedral Guild and his suite, including William J. Dooley, Dr. John R. Slattery, Dr. William H. Dunn, Henry V. Cunningham and James M. Prandegast.

Cardinal Spillane

After informally greeting some of the members of the hierarchy the cardinal drew the guests about the throne and said:

"Last Sunday I had the privilege of welcoming the delegates in a formal way, but, fearing that if we did not have something more than a formal welcome you would go away with the impression that Boston was as cold as she is reputed to be, we wanted a warmer greeting one that would do away with formally as much as possible."

I can't tell you how happy Boston is on account of this wonderful gathering. It is the greatest occasion Boston has ever known, from the Catholic point of view, certainly, and indeed from any point of view. This gathering of archbishops and bishops and other prelates of this and other countries in itself constitutes a great world gathering.

And his honor the mayor has recognized this, and when I invited him to come here tonight he accepted readily. I have no doubt you all know of our mayor, John F. Fitzgerald. It is not enough to know of any one. I want you to know him, and therefore his honor has done us the favor of accepting our invitation and will now address you in the name of the city of Boston.

Mayor Fitzgerald

The mayor then delivered his address. He said in part:

"In performing the agreeable duties of hospitality I am called upon to face many gatherings and to extend the welcome of the city to workers in a hundred different fields, but of all the conventions that I have addressed, I do not know any which is brought to me by a higher motive."

"Boston is glad to honor this distinguished company, men who owe their elevation to no accident of birth and no accumulation of worldly riches, but simply and solely to the great services which they have rendered to humanity by spiritual works. Nowadays, when so much stress is laid upon the material side of life, it is well that should pay honor to men who have put aside the greaser pleasures and 'pinks and dainties' and my talents and energies to doing good."

"Boston stands for this form of service. She is renowned the world over as the nursery of statesmen, orators and philanthropists, whose genius, has expressed itself in resistance to wrong and the translation into action of the finer sentiments that are interwoven with our complex nature."

"You come, then, to a city predisposed in your favor and deeply interested in your labors. Your deliberations will be followed with eager sympathy. Your calling is honored here. It is my privilege and my pleasure to speak for 1,500,000 citizens of Greater Boston, who differ otherwise as they may, are unanimous today in welcoming you to the warmest hospitality of this city."

This congress is no ordinary event. The progress of the Catholic church in this country has been one of the marvels which the historian has been obliged to record, and I am pleased to assure you that in no other part of the country has this growth been more a matter of genuine gratification than in the great Catholic centre of metropolitan Boston."

Archbishop Bonanza did not attend the reception as he was obliged to leave the city on the 5 o'clock train yesterday afternoon, after having addressed the congress at the morning session in Symphony hall. The archbishops present at the reception were Archbishop Quigley of Chicago, McNeill of Toronto, Bruchesi of Montreal, Blenk of New Orleans, Pilavai of Santa Fe, Christie of Oregon and Legal of Edmonton, Alberta.

"TEDDY" AT RIO JANEIRO

Ex-Pres. Roosevelt Given Great Reception Upon His Arrival on Steamer Van Dyke

RIO JANEIRO, Oct. 21.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt landed here today from the steamer Van Dyke and was received on the quay of the naval arsenal by a great assembly of the most prominent people in Brazil. Marshal Hermes Fonseca, president of the republic, sent a special representative as he was unable to be present, while all the cabinet ministers of Brazil, the minister of Argentina with the members of his legation, the presidents of the Brazilian senate and chamber of deputies, a representative parliamentary committee, the chief commissioner of the police, the presidents of the various tribunals of the high court of justice, the members of the municipal council headed by the mayor of Rio Janeiro, many members of the diplomatic corps, high functionaries of the government, military and naval officers and other notables attended in full uniform.

A procession, headed by Col. Roosevelt and the representative of the president of the Brazilian republic, proceeded to a reception given in the naval arsenal which was decorated with Brazilian flags and the Stars and Stripes intertwined. Here the members of Col. Roosevelt's party were introduced to the leading officials who in turn presented their colleagues to the distinguished visitor.

After this ceremony had concluded, Col. Roosevelt was conducted from the naval arsenal to the Guanabara palace, where he will reside during his sojourn here.

All the newspapers of Rio Janeiro today published articles welcoming the colonel in most cordial terms.

CITY WINS CASE FOREIGN PRIESTS

Verdict of $25,153.50 for City of Boston for Taxes on Cemetery

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Judge Crosby handed down his decision yesterday in favor of the city of Boston for collection of taxes against the proprietors of Mt. Auburn cemetery. The city sued for taxes on personal property and Judge Crosby finds for it in the sum of $25,153.50, of which $24,600 is for taxes and $553.50 for interest.

It is understood that the case is a test one, and will be brought before the full bench of the supreme court. The suit was brought by Bowdoin S. Parker, tax collector, and argued by Attorney Joseph P. Lyons, assistant corporation counsel for the city. The suit was for the taxes of 1912. As a result of an order of the city council passed April 15, 1912, taxes of $24,600 were levied upon the proprietors of the cemetery and payment demanded, but was refused, and suit was begun last July.

It went to Judge Crosby on an agreed statement of facts, in which it was announced that no taxes had been assessed upon the personal property of the cemetery in 1912 by any other city or town. The personal property tax, according to the theory of the proprietors, that they had an office in the city and were consequently taxable. Attorneys for the defendant argued that the cemetery case came under the non-taxable provisions of the statutes. The cemetery contains 155 acres, of which six acres are in Cambridge and the remainder in Watertown, and is valued at $1,500,000.

SENATOR FISHER HEARD

ON DEFEAT OF PORK BARREL BILL

—MR. HOGAN AND COUNTY CANDIDATES ACTIVE

Senator Fisher addressed a large and enthusiastic rally at West Lynn last evening at which he explained in detail his reasons as a member of the committee on ways and means for opposing the "Pork Barrel Bill," so called, which would have placed a burden of $5,000,000 upon the commonwealth and showed where subsequent developments in 1914 have proven that he was right in opposing this measure, and the citizens of Lynn are now awakened to this fact.

He also pointed out the reasons why a certain newspaper in Lynn was attacking him for this opposition. His remarks were greeted with frequent applause.

Mr. John J. Hogan, candidate for councillor was also present and received a flattering welcome. Both Senator Fisher and Mr. Hogan will address a rally in Saugus on Thursday evening. The territory which each has to cover is extensive and both are compelled to spend most of their time outside the city of Lowell.

Mullen also of Cambridge. The party is to visit the leading cities in the county. In this city they criticized ring rule and appealed for support at the polls.

One reason I so strongly recommend moreolized wax is that it really takes the place of several different cosmetics, saving time, patience and expense. It is better than any cleansing cream, and does not irritate the skin. It is better than any powder, as it does not clog the pores. It is better than any skin cream, as it does not make the skin greasy. It is better than any skin lotion, as it does not dry the skin. It is better than any skin soap, as it does not strip the skin of its natural oils. It is better than any skin oil, as it does not make the skin shiny. KILLED IN STORM

A Chicago Switchman, Blinded by Snow, Was Run Over by Train

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Chicago awoke this morning to witness the first heavy snow storm of the season. Snow began falling last evening and continued all through the night. Early this morning the mercury dropped below the freezing point.

Traffic on the surface and elevated roads here today was delayed by a heavy storm and half a dozen persons were reported injured in accidents caused by the great fall of snow and ice.

Blinded by the snow, Charles Blake, a switchman, was run down by a freight train and killed.

The sign "Savings Department," by which the law was evaded and money taken in under conditions very much akin to false pretences. That such a deceptive system of getting hold of the people's money actually flourished here, shows that a speedy change in the law to protect the public against such savings departments in the future is most urgently needed.

SUMMER IN MANY CLIMES

A Graphic Paper Read by Miss Fetherston of Boston at Notre Dame Alumnae Reunion

At the reunion of the alumnae of Notre Dame held last Saturday, Miss Nora Fetherston of Boston read a very fine paper on her recent trip to Europe, including a tour of the British Isles and several countries on the continent. One of the other ladies present secured the paper and requests The Sun to publish it. Accordingly the greater part of the paper, entitled "Summer in Many Climes," is given below.

Dear Sister Superior, Kind Teachers, and old School Friends of Notre Dame:

I acknowledge the warmth of your greeting and appreciate the honor you do me by inviting me to address you on the subject of my recent trip to the old world and back again.

I left Boston on Tuesday, June 24 of this year, with a friend from Winchester, bound for Queenstown, Ireland. Following the advice issued by our port directors to sail from Boston we sailed on the steamship "Lancania," from Cunard docks, East Boston, at 1:30 p. m. Through the kindness of friends my stateroom was filled with flowers and gifts from friends whose names seem to be legion. The events of each day were practically the same during the voyage, which lasted seven days. On the following Tuesday, July 1, we landed at Queenstown at 9 p. m., and after an examination of baggage by the customs service we went to the Queen's hotel on shore for the night.

Wednesday, July 2, we left the hotel after breakfast for an early walk to St. Coleman's cathedral, which is situated on a hill overlooking Queenstown harbor, the bay, and the crowded shops on Front street below. This cathedral, a fine sample of Gothic architecture, is not yet finished, but when completed will undoubtedly be one of the finest churches in all Ireland.

We left for Cork, the largest city of Ireland (15 miles away), at 11:30 and reached the Imperial hotel in time for an excellent dinner. Being refreshed and rested for our afternoon trip to Blarney castle, we took an electric car and arrived at our destination in less than an hour. We failed to kiss the Blarney stone, much to our regret, only because it was out of reach and it would be necessary to almost stand on one's head to kiss it. Went to the top of the castle and enjoyed the view across the Blarney meadows. It was just at the close of day as the summer sun was setting in the west, and the rich purple glow lit up the whole surrounding country. When the shadows lengthened across the fields, we turned reluctantly away from Blarney and journeyed back to Cork.

Thursday, July 3, we started by the Prince of Wales route for Killybegs. The most beautiful spot in all Ireland, we went to Bantry and thence by boat up Bantry Bay to Glenarriff, arriving at 7 p. m. at Roches hotel. Here we found an earthly paradise. There were hundreds of beautiful hawthorne bushes all aglow with rich purple light, and shrubbery. It was a Sunday afternoon and the crowds that came to the park were neat and self-respecting, and reminded me not a little of my own beloved Boston.

In Scotland

From Dublin I went to Belfast and then across the Irish sea to Glasgow, Scotland. Spent some time there, also in Edinburgh, and had a beautiful sail on the Scottish lakes, Loch Lomond and Katrine, where I lived over again my school days, when we read Scott's "The Lake of Geneva." Also went through the romantic pass of the Trossacks, which has been so glowingly painted by the pen of Sir Walter Scott, and is probably one of the most popular spots for scenic loveliness in the country.

Visited Abbotsford, the home of Sir Walter Scott, which place he occupied up to the time of his death. Part of the house is open to visitors as a museum and contains personal effects and many relics. The house has been occupied by his granddaughter, Honorable Maxwell Scott. From Abbotsford we drove to Dryburgh abbey, the burial place of Sir Walter. The abbey was founded by Augustinian monks in 1150. From Scotland we visited the English lake district, and had lovely sails on Laken Windermere, Grasmere and Derwentwater, and enjoyed the scenery and grandeur of these lakes, which the English lake poets, Southey, Wordsworth and Coleridge have so beautifully described.

Birthplace of Shakespeare

Visited the old city of Chester, which dates back to 1160, and then came on to Warwick on the way to Stratford-upon-Avon, the birthplace of William Shakespeare. The house is converted into a museum and library, and there are interesting exhibits of relics, books, manuscripts and early editions.

We then came to London and saw much of interest. Visited London Tower. First visited the chamber. Saw the regalia, jewel crowns of monarchs and beautiful gold plates used on coronation occasions. Saw black and axe in White tower, a lasting disgrace to the history of England. In the Beaumont tower saw the inscription of many prisoners who were executed to die for their faith. Those of royal blood were permitted to be put to death in the tower yard; others were led to the ground beyond.

Visited Westminster abbey. Little Poets' corner, Cloister and Poets' Corner, where we saw the tomb of Dickens, Thackeray, Macaulay and busts of Longfellow and Scott; also the grave of David Garrick. In the south aisle of this chapel are tombs of Mary Queen of Scots, Queen Anne and others. Visited the Roman Catholic cathedral in Westminster, where we visited the crypt of St. Peter to see the monuments of Cardinals Manning and Wiseman. Cardinal Vaughan lies in the upper chapel of the Blessed Sacrament.

Being over Sunday in London, we went to St. James church. This is the church of the Spenser family, and it so happened that King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain were in London and attended mass in the Lady chapel of the church while we were there. They were attended by the Spanish legation.

Visited the grand old cathedrals at Ely and Canterbury, the latter historically first because of the martyrdom of St. Thomas a Becket, who was murdered by King Henry. A spot in the basement marks the place of the deed. Visited some art galleries and National Museum among them the Victoria and Albert Museum, where we saw some fine pictures of old Dutch and Flemish artists. Visited the land of windmills, canals and wooden shoes, a very interesting country.

From Amsterdam we went on to Cologne, Germany, along the Rhine river. Scenery magnificent, fine old castles, and many beautiful residences and villages. Visited the Cologne cathedral (Cathedral). It was begun in the 12th century and completed only in the 19th. It has the two highest towers in Europe (500 feet high). Best examples of early pointed Gothic architecture.

From Cologne we visited Switzerland, and passed in 10 days about half of the time on beautiful Lake Lucerne.

We spent one day in making a round of the lake itself, stopping long enough at Fluelen, at the foot of the lake, to make a side journey to Axenstrasse, said to be the highest mountain road in the world. Had our pictures taken in an Alpine costume. Later we went to Interlaken, and from there to Brienz and then to Jungfrau, which is one of the highest peaks, covered with snow and ice the year round. Went up on the Rhone glacier, also did the Gornergrat, which is considered one of the finest in the whole of Switzerland. Then went to Lausanne, and from there to Lake Geneva, where we spent a beautiful day on Lake Geneva.

From Geneva we went to Lourdes, by way of Paris, arriving in time to take part in the pilgrimage to this famous shrine. We shared in the celebration of Lady Day, Aug. 15, the Feast of the Assumption. Saw a miracle performed with my own eyes. A nurse who had been unable to walk for years was suddenly restored to health, and it is the custom when a miracle is performed for a priest to lead in the chanting of the magnificat. The procession up the mountain side, the chanting, the candles, were carried by those taking part in the procession and the soft chant of the magnificat and other hymns to the Blessed Mother of God were very inspiring and long to be remembered.

Leaving Lourdes, we went to Paris, visited many places of interest, among them the Church of Notre Dame, Madeleine, Napoleon's tomb, Eiffel tower, the Louvre, where I saw famous paintings by noted artists, and many other interesting places which time will not permit me to tell about.

Leaving Paris for Cherbourg, I boarded the steamer George Washington, which I took for my return home, Aug. 24. On the ship I had the honor of meeting the noted Benedictine, the Rt. Rev. Francis Adrian Gasquet, one of the most interesting of the few remaining monks of the old world. Saw whom Pope Pius X. appointed to superintend the revision of the Vulgate. An impressive feature of the homeward journey was the celebration of mass every morning on board the steamer. Sunday mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Landeau, who is a fervent English by Abbot Gasquet, and one in German by Fr. Schumacher, who came to join the faculty at the Catholic university in Washington, D. C. The mass was sung sweetly by four Ursuline nuns.

K. OF C. MEETING

To Make Plans for the Halloween Party and Social Season

No body of men in this city is more earnestly making plans for a strenuous social season than the local council of the Knights of Columbus. They have forgotten the unrest and excitement of moving from their old quarters into the new and beautiful club house on Anne street. They have thrown their rooms open to their friends on many recent occasions. Now they are preparing to enjoy to the full the advantages of their new quarters, and if the present plans materialize, the Anne street club house will be the scene of many brilliant social events of a novel nature during the coming season. The possession of a large and attractive hall connected with the club rooms has offered an opportunity to the more imaginative to suggest many unusual entertainments, and a committee chosen for the purpose of planning an entertaining social party, a "colossal" party, a barn dance, a pop concert, and many other novel entertainments, more or less formal, will be held in the near future.

For the purpose of making arrangements for a successful season a special meeting has been called for next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p. m. The Knights realize that in matters of this nature the opinion of every member is of value and they are especially anxious to have the hall packed to capacity at the meeting next Sunday. Definite arrangements will then be made for the coming Halloween party, which, according to tradition and general usage, will be held on the ghostly evening of October 31. Some of the younger members are pestering their former friends for pumpkins and corn shocks and others are specializing on decorative witches and black cats, but there is an air of mystery throughout all arrangements that betokens some creepy surprises at the Halloween party. As it is to be a character party, there can be no doubt that there will be witches, gnomes, hobgoblins, goblins, and all the other creatures of the night, and that the evening will be a most successful one.

At the meeting next Sunday afternoon not only will the arrangements for the coming Halloween and other parties be discussed, but plans will be formulated for the purpose of adopting some systematic method of arranging committees so that practically all the members may take part in planning for the social entertainments without placing too much of the burden on a few willing individuals as is the case in most fraternities. It is the object of the Knights of Columbus to make their social events so successful that enjoyment in all particulars of dignified enjoyment, that those who attend will look forward to the next. They have an ideal place in which to hold them, and they have experienced and clever members to take charge. The rest should be easy.

APPLE DAY HERE

A Quiet Observance in State-Worcester Celebrates the Occasion

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—No formal exercises marked the celebration of national apple day in Massachusetts today but every lover of apples added a sample or two of the fruit to his daily allowance. This state is the home of the Baldwin apple which was first discovered and developed in the town of Wilmot.

During the past few years many old orchards have been renovated and new ones started throughout the state, largely through the efforts of the state board of agriculture.

"Not only do we want to bloom the apple as a cooked food," said Secretary Wilfred Wheeler of the board, "but it should also be used more in its raw state."

AT WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Oct. 21.—The delicious apple dumpling, the toothsome apple fritter, the good old-fashioned New England apple pie and all the other delicacies of apple day will be the table and lunch room call today in Worcester, for it will be Apple day, and the people of the city have planned extensively to celebrate the occasion.

Besides eating the apple in one form or another, presents of choice apples will be sent to friends and relatives. The public schools will observe the day by having their pupils study the apple.

Some schools will offer prizes for the best essays on apples. The choicest apples from the orchards will be plucked for the occasion and brought to the school rooms. None will be without apples, and those who have plentiful supplies will give to those who have not.

Schools, charitable institutions and those who cannot afford to buy apples in quantity for a proper observance of the day have but to ask for apples from the general committee of arrangements and their wants will be satisfied.

Worcester apple men are deeply interested in the day and have done much to arouse general and popular interest in the matter. Worcester county is a great apple raising district.

EAT APPLES IN INDIANA

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 21.—Governor Samuel Ralston in a communication issued yesterday, requests that the residents of Indiana eat at least one apple each today, which he has named Apple day in Indiana. The governor's request was made in an open letter to Edward H. Smith, president of the Indiana Apple show commission.

"There has been in the past too much neglect of the orchards, not only in Indiana, but elsewhere," wrote the governor. "Like Texas, apples were not raised but they 'did' grow and the trees were expected to bring forth fruit without much, if any aid from the farmer. This indifference has cost our state and country a vast sum, both in the loss of apples and orchards in many cases."

"I heartily approve your suggestion that tomorrow, the third Tuesday in October, be observed as Apple day and that each person in the state should at least eat one apple on that day, in accordance with the tradition that an apple each day keeps the physician away."

WOMEN'S CLUB

Heard Delightful Recital by Miss Herford in Clever Monologues

The first program meeting of the Women's club was held yesterday afternoon and was largely attended. The members were furnished a delightful entertainment by Beatrice Herford, a highly talented young lady, who gives original witty monologues in a most clever manner.

Miss Herford's humor is obtained from her own observations, and in the main deals with the sketching of characters of women of various types and under chosen circumstances. She makes use of no costume or stage equipment. This fact, combined with her wonderfully pleasing personality, are the means of gaining widespread popularity and favor for the talented young lady wherever she is heard.

For her topics yesterday, she chose the following: "The Cook," "A Lady From England," "The Only Child," and "The Discontented Veteran." The latter was a clever caricature of the woman voter. One of her best efforts was "The Lady From England," for it gives her an excellent opportunity for character interpretation. Her subject is an English lady traveling in America, and shows her attempts to become accustomed to American customs and ways.

Each of Miss Herford's impersonations had a deal of laughter, and those who heard her were high in praise of her talents.

TO GROW HAIR ON A BALD HEAD

BY A SPECIALIST

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair, who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their cash has been thrown away. The following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out, and destroying the dandruff germ. If you wish, add half to one ounce of the perfume of To-Kalon Perfume, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. This preparation is highly recommended by all the best physicians, and is absolutely harmless, and contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics.

—Finds Him Married Again

Stricken so deeply with grief over the fact that she had not heard from her husband for over two years, giving up the care and attention of her six children so that she might learn the details of his supposed death, and being obliged to sell her little domicile in Finland which she called home, Marusko Puranla came to this city a short time ago and found, not a dead husband and a grave to mourn over,

SUPERIOR COURT SESSION

Verdict for Plaintiffs in Auto Case
—Mrs. Strout Sues Local Florists for Damages

At the opening of the superior court session this morning, Attorney Albert S. Howard, of Quab, and Rogers, introduced a motion for a speedy trial in the case of Connors Bros. vs. the Y.M.C.A., for payment of a promissory note of $30,000. Mr. Dunbar, who represents the defense, declared that the defendants admit that they owe the amount of the note to Connors Bros. He asked for a delay, saying that he desired to waive claim for a jury trial in order that the case might go over to November. Mr. Howard of the plaintiff's side, requested the court to allow him to file a claim for a jury trial and to mark the case for trial or default on next Tuesday. The court allowed this motion and marked the case for trial on next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. In case of default or of a verdict for plaintiff, judgment will be issued on the first Monday in December. According to the plaintiff, the promissory note was given last March, and since that time nothing has been done to raise the money. It is the expectation of all parties that before judgment is obtained, some action will be taken by the defendant for raising the money.

Verdict for Defendants
Late this morning, the jury in the case of Jennie E. Goddard and Melissa Ellis vs. John E. Horne of Lawrence, an accident case resulting from the alleged collision of the auto of the defendant with a carriage of the plaintiffs, returned a verdict for the plaintiffs.

WANTED ADMIRAL
EATON ARRESTEDPrivate Detective Testified Today That Widow Wanted Him to Secure Evidence Against Her Husband.

PLYMOUTH, Oct. 21.—Rapid progress in the presentation of testimony was expected in the Eaton trial today. The government planned to call a number of neighbors of the Eatons at Assinippi to tell of what they knew of conditions in the household prior to the death of Rear Admiral Joseph Eaton, with whose murder his wife, Mrs. Jennie May Eaton is charged.

The sun shone into the courtroom today for the first time since the trial of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton began a week ago. The crowd was smaller than on previous days, though, as usual, women predominated.

John Prouty of Norwell testified at the afternoon session that Mrs. Eaton once came to him to seek a new home for herself and June because, she said, June dare not eat anything when the admiral is at home.

Mrs. Eaton said her husband was insane. She thought that her youngest daughter Dorothy would be all right with him because the admiral was very fond of her.

Charles E. Nordstrom, a private detective, testified to meeting Mrs. Eaton by appointment in the South station, Boston, on June 13, 1912. Mrs. Eaton wanted him to secure evidence against and have the admiral arrested as a poisoner. Mrs. Eaton told him that some times when she awoke in the middle of the night she would find blood streaming from her arm where the admiral had injected poison. Nordstrom did not take the case, as Mrs. Eaton failed to keep a second appointment.

Mrs. Charles M. Hilt, who lived near the Eatons at Assinippi, testified to conversations with Mrs. Eaton in which the defendant had said that Admiral

FREIGHT RATES INQUIRY STARTS

Many Oppose Petition of B. & M. for Authority to Raise Prices

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Representatives of many New England trade associations appeared today at an adjourned hearing before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty to oppose the petition of the Boston & Maine road for authority to increase its freight rates in certain sections of New England. In former hearings on the petition members of the public service commissions of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts sat with Commissioner Prouty.

David O. Ives, the rate expert of the Boston chamber of commerce, claimed that the increased rates were excessive, especially to large centers of population in the northern and western sections of New England. He said that what decreases had been made were in sparsely settled districts in the northern part of the section.

Commissioner Cummings announced this morning that the time for the completion of the band stand on the South common will be extended from Dec. 1 to the 15th, on account of the large amount of work to be done. The bids for the same will be opened at the office of the commissioner of public buildings at 11 o'clock Friday morning.

SAVINGS BANKS

How They Differ—"Savings Department" of National Bank a Subterfuge for Evasion of Law

The question commonly asked throughout the city today is, "If the national bank is examined regularly by the examiners, why are not the funds there deposited just as secure as the funds deposited in a savings bank under the supervision of the Massachusetts Savings bank commission?"

There are many reasons which the people should know, and which many of our readers would know had they taken heed to an article published in

The Sun some time ago and explaining the danger of a savings department conducted in connection with a national bank and not complying with the laws and regulations governing savings banks controlled by the savings bank commission of Massachusetts.

The laws governing the methods of doing business in a national bank are very much different from those governing the business of a regular savings bank.

The members of the municipal council held their regular weekly meeting this forenoon and the most important matter was to adopt an order in reference with the state election which will be held on Nov. 4, relative to certain questions which will be placed on the ballot. A list of routine business was transacted and about 50 orders pertaining to pole locations and wire attachments were adopted.

The meeting was called to order by

SULZER TO RUN POLITICAL DISORDERS

Nomination for the Assembly by New York Progressives

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—William Sulzer, impeached as governor of the state, was nominated for the assembly last night by the progressives of the sixth assembly district. It was announced at the meeting, where he was chosen as the candidate. Max Steindler, progressive leader in the sixth district, who placed the former governor's name in nomination, said Mr. Sulzer reached him by telephone from Albany inquiring if he had been designated. TWO MEN ELECTROCUTED

Instantly Killed by Live Wire in
Malden—Three Others Injured
—Boy Killed by Wire in Haverhill

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Two men were killed and three others were seriously injured by live wires swept from the fastenings during the severe storm in Malden yesterday.

The dead are Samuel Peters, 21 years old, of Providence, R. I., and Ralph Boutlier, 17 years old, of 515 Lynn street, Malden.

The injured are Dennis J. Hurley, 165 Lebanon street, Malden; his son, Joseph L. Hurley, and Andrew Repetto, 35 Hancock street, Malden.

While Ralph Boutlier was crossing a field at the corner of Lynn and Lawrence streets last night he saw a number of bright sparks floating around in the darkness, close to the ground. He attempted to catch one of them and found there were sparks from a live wire.

Notwithstanding his struggles the wire wrapped itself around the body of the young man and he was killed. Andrew Repetto, who was with him attempted to drag the wire away and nearly met death himself in the attempt.

Drs. Fred Andrews, of Revere, and William W. Lougee, of Malden, with a physician from the Medford & Malden Gas Light Company, worked over four hours, striving to bring back life without success.

Boutlier was a graduate of the Malden High school and was employed by the Liberty Trust Company of Boston.

Instantly Electrocuted

During the afternoon Samuel Peters, who had been visiting at the home of Robert Briggs, 11 Garden street, attempted to pick a wire from a muddy sidewalk. The wire was highly charged and Peters was instantly killed.

Joseph L. Hurley, seeing his plight, and thinking himself protected because he was wearing rubber overshoes, went to his assistance, only to be knocked unconscious. Dennis J. Hurley tried to rescue his son, and he, too, was severely shocked and burned, but he finally managed to pull his son from the wire.

The pulmotor was also used on Peters, but it failed to revive him. Peters was a native of Belfast, Ireland, and had been in this country but four years. He was employed as an officer on the steamer Georgia, plying between Providence and Savannah.

BOY KILLED

Haverhill Lad Electrocuted by Grasping Live Wire Under Pier—Harbor Master Narrowly Escaped

HAVERHILL, Oct. 21.—Clayton Morse, aged 15, of 35 Lewis street was electrocuted on a pier under the Haverhill Bradford bridge yesterday afternoon and Harbor Master John Gilman narrowly escaped the same fate. The latter was rescued by a minister.

Morse, with a companion named Pike, walked out on the stringers underneath the bridge and had reached the pier on the Bradford side of the long fender pier supporting the draw when he caught hold of the cables carrying a heavy voltage of electricity from the power plants of the Bay State & Haverhill Electric company, also the cables supplying power to the motors, which operate the draw. In doing so the boy got a ground with the cables which run into the river and the combined currents passed through his body.

Thoroughly frightened, Pike ran to Harbor Master Gilman, who was in his house at the Bradford end of the bridge, for assistance. The harbor master went to the point where the boy was clinging to the wires, climbed down to the pier and attempted to pull the boy off from the wires, with the result that he also suffered a severe shock and was rendered partially unconscious.

Charles A. Willey, who was in the harbor master's house, grew uneasy when Gilman did not return and went out to investigate, and with the Rev. Robert Atkinson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, found the boy and the man clinging to the wire. Gilman was struggling to free himself, but the boy remained inert. The Rev. Mr. Atkinson succeeded in pulling Gilman away by his clothing and he quickly recovered from the shock. The boy was dead. His body dropped into the river, but was recovered.

A NEW PLAGUE

Epidemic in Framingham Laid to Chestnuts by Doctors

FRAMINGHAM, Oct. 21.—Doctors are reporting the existence of an epidemic in Framingham, Westboro and surrounding towns, which they blame upon the promiscuous eating of chestnuts.

For some years there has been a blight affecting chestnut trees over the entire country, and the plague is just beginning to reach Massachusetts. This year the chestnuts have been plenty and as the result an unusual number of people have been eating them.

This fall the doctors have been overrun with cases of a peculiar nature. The cause of these cases of sickness is now laid to chestnuts.

The new disease affects the tongue and mouth and causes intestinal disturbances. Dr. R. M. Raymond and Dr. W. Hoyt of the Framingham bacteriological laboratory are conducting an exhaustive investigation. Meanwhile, they are advising everyone to abstain from eating chestnuts.

ADMITS KILLING WAMESIT LODGE

Boy Guilty of Murder of Captain Young, a Retired Seaman

ELLSWORTH, Me., Oct. 21.—Edwin Goodwin, an 18-year-old Surry boy, pleaded guilty to an indictment that he murdered Captain Harry C. Young on Oct. 25 last, in the supreme court yesterday. He was remanded for sentence.

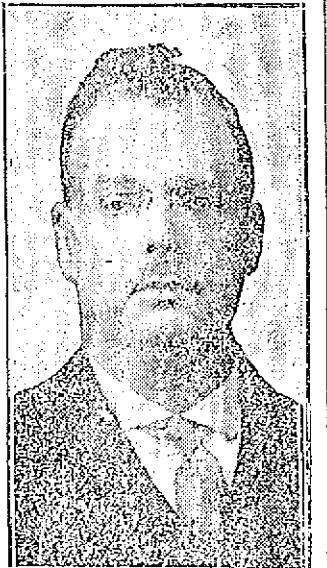

Goodwin confessed immediately after the killing and robbing of Captain Young, a retired sea captain, who kept a small store at Surry. When arraigned in April on the indictment reported then, he pleaded not guilty and a motion by counsel that he be committed to the state hospital at Augusta for observation of his mental condition was granted. The observation having failed to show he was insane, the boy decided to plead guilty to the charge. There is no death penalty in Maine.

Observed 22nd Anniversary With a Banquet and Entertainment

Over 150 members and friends of Wamesit lodge, 7103, I. O. O. F., M. U., gathered in Oak Fellows hall last night to celebrate the 22nd birthday of the lodge. Early in the evening a banquet was served and this was followed by an entertainment which consisted of numbers by local and out of town talent.

The evening's program was opened with remarks by Chairman J. H. Egan, who welcomed the guests and referred to the work that Wamesit lodge was doing at the present time. Other numbers on the program were: Piano solos, Brother Henderson; song, W. McGrath; remarks, P. G. Orrell; duet, Matthew Lord and P. M. Sullivan.

The principal speaker of the evening was P. G. Fred Humphries of the home lodge who spoke at some length on fraternalism and good fellowship. His talk was very interesting and won much applause.

Mr. Humphries' Address
"It is hardly necessary for me to explain how highly I appreciate the honor you have given me in allowing me the opportunity of making a few remarks here this evening. I heartily thank you for the cordial invitation and I assure you it is deeply appreciated."

Your chairman told me that the theme upon which I should speak tonight ought to be vital and of human interest—some such words as these he used. I tried to think up what would be vital and of human interest to my brother members who are here tonight celebrating the 22nd anniversary of our lodge. I confess I am somewhat at a loss what to say that is new that will prove interesting for the short time allotted to me.

Fraternalism
"The lodges of any organization differ as individuals differ. Some are looking forward and some backward; some are forging ahead and securing results for the society, while others are in a rut, and derive no benefit from the opportunities and benefits which lie within their reach. The latter are suffering from the effects of inertia and are not living examples of the fraternal principles."

"The supreme or grand lodge officers may be doing all that lies within human power to reverse these conditions, but the fact remains that it is up to the local officers and the individual members to do their share to make the lodge a vital and living force in the life of the community. Their efforts are what have been responsible for the wonderful growth and success which have attended fraternalism in the past, so constructing a foundation that is now four square to the winds that blow."

"The future then rests in our hands. It is to be determined by the manner in which we live up to our duties and opportunities. The basic principle of fraternalism calls for our earnest effort and assistance in the interests of our organization."

succeed and flourish if members do not attend meetings. The opportunities for expressing one's thoughts before an assembly of parliamentary practice, of systematic keeping of accounts, of acquiring habits of frugality and of making provision for the future—these are but a few of the desirable features open to all. They form the foundation upon which the fraternal system has been constructed. They are only possible of development through our local lodges. The lodge may well be said to be of the people, for the people and by the people."

The Lodge and the Home

"Some one cried out recently that fraternal orders tend to destroy individualism, that association of man with his fellows consumes the individual and his individualism. That thought, at first glance, seems to carry a 'punch,' but by tearing it in bits and calmly gazing at the remains, we find it is merely a lot of words with no conviction back of it. The home is a fraternal order of father, mother, son and daughter—the greatest and soundest of fraternals. Is individualism destroyed there? Is the son's future—his manly thoughts—his determination for his future life warped or dimmed by association with father and mother and sister? Isn't the lodge room a fraternal home where fathers and mothers and sisters and brothers meet? Doesn't fraternalism mean 'home' and home ties, home benefits, home loves? Do we not have many of the same questions in the lodge room as we are confronted with in the home? If the trend of thought and practice in the lodge room is permitted by home ties, and benefits and uplifts, then where's the difference between home and the lodge room?"

"Brothers, the future of the Manchester Unity in this country rests entirely upon ourselves, and I am satisfied to believe that the unsullied, the brotherly feelings and fraternal spirit the past will carry you on to even greater achievements in the future."

"The active members find themselves engaged in a broader field of charitable endeavor than they could ever find in any other connection. They become gentle and tender in their dealings with fellow members, and in this way learn to subdue self in their consideration for others. Strong and lasting friendships are made in our lodge rooms, and men entirely different in methods of living, apparently far apart in the social scale, are brought to a lively appreciation of the only true democracy, when they chop hands in the work of our fraternity."

"You who realize that there is something more than the pecuniary question of sickness and funeral benefits, within the meaning of the word Odd Fellowship, must increase your efforts, and it goes without saying that you are ready and willing to do so. The great principles of friendship, love and truth which have always animated our best workers, and guiding, and although there may be some who are dismayed at the prospects, I feel sure that every earnest worker, mindful of the lessons of the past, will go ahead in the full assurance that the sentiments of brotherhood and true fellowship will enable us to overcome all obstacles that may confront us in the years to come, and make the name of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Manchester Unity, a household word throughout the length and breadth of our United States."

NO NAVAL HOLIDAY

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—The proposal by Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty, that England and Germany should declare a "naval holiday" in 1914 was received without sympathy by the German government which regards it as a calling for a reply. It is generally considered doubtful whether any official notice will be taken of the suggestion, although it is thought Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg may, perhaps, refer to the subject later on in the course of debate in the Imperial parliament.

The naval authorities here consider the proposition that Germany should not build any warships while England is constructing or acquiring at least three cannot be discussed.

RUSSELL WILL

A Rumor That "Dakota Dan" Loses Fight—He Expects to be Arrested

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Master Gilbert A. Pevey, sitting as master for the supreme court, made a secret disclosure of his findings in the famous Russell case to the lawyers in the case yesterday.

Last night it was said in Pemberton square that the finding would not be favorable to "Dakota Dan." At the same time it was stated that the master had carefully refrained from naming "Fresno Dan" as the rightful heir. Attorney William R. Scharon for Dakota Dan and Attorney Robert W. Nason and Eugene C. Upton for Fresno Dan were called to the office of the master and there told of his findings. They were admonished to maintain the strictest secrecy until the document in full is filed with the court by the master. It is said to be a bulky folio containing more than 100 pages, going into the testimony fully.

Coincident with the rumors of the finding came rumors that criminal prosecutions would follow the filing of the report. It is said District Attorney Higgins of Middlesex county has already had several interviews with Master Pevey in regard to the case.

District Attorney Higgins said last night that any action that he might take will be based upon what he believes the evidence to show. He said, even if Master Pevey made no recommendation for arrests, he could, if the evidence demanded it, place under arrest any or all witnesses.

Dakota Dan said last night he expected to be arrested. He hoped he would be for that would give him a chance to get his case before a jury. He said the only reason they had not arrested him before was because they had not dared to. He thought now that public opinion had gone so far in regard to veiled hints of perjury that his opponents would be compelled to arrest him.

Meanwhile Fresno Dan, who has been received by William C. Russell as his real brother, has left town. Fresno Dan, after being accepted by Brother William and Ferdinand Almy, executor of the estate, as the real missing heir, was given quarters in the stable of the old Russell estate at Melrose. It was said in Melrose last night that Fresno Dan was visiting relatives in Buda, Ill.

William C. Russell, who has opposed the claims of Dakota Dan and Fresno Dan, declined to comment last night upon the finding. He admitted, however, that Fresno Dan had been making a trip in the west and claimed he would return to Melrose shortly.

NEGRO QUESTION

Heated Debate at the Episcopal Church Convention Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—A heated debate over the negro question in the south, continued the deliberations of the house of deputies of the Protestant Episcopal church at today's session of the general convention. A majority report of the committee on racial episcopate with recommendations against the proposal to establish separate churches, dioceses, clergy and bishops for negroes in the south was presented. A minority report advocating the separation of the races and the appointment of negro bishops to sit in the house of bishops with powers equal to the whites was also presented. Amid a storm of discussion the house finally made consideration of both reports the order of business for the afternoon session tomorrow.

A loss of more than 16,000 pupils within the last three years from the Sunday schools of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States was reported today.

While there had been a loss in the Sunday schools, the report added, there had been a gain in communicants.

Excited Depositors Flocked to Building—Bank May Pay Ninety Per Cent—The Stockholders

The vicinity of the Traders National bank on Middlesex street was frequented by a great number of people this morning who gathered in Post-office avenue to ascertain if any notices or other papers had been posted on the bank doors. The statement of Clarence H. Nelson, president of the bank, which told the circumstances of the closing and that depositors were assured of their money was removed last night or this morning and only the notice of the failure of the bank remained. Hundreds of mill employees passed the door this morning before going to work in the hope of finding a statement relative to the opening of the bank. Many men and women, mostly foreigners, walked around the building up to a late hour last night and in spite of the drizzling rain they stood on the corners trying to secure some information as to the safety of their deposits. The police officers who were sent to the building to prevent disturbance were questioned many times but no trouble was started by the anxious depositors. Will Probably Pay 80 Per Cent.

EXCUSE ME

INDICTMENT AGAINST EDITOR QUASHED

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 21.—The trial here of Thomas Watson, charged with sending obscene matter through the mails, ended abruptly at noon when Federal Judge Rufus E. Foster sustained the motion of the defense quashing the indictment against the Georgia editor.

In directing that the indictment be quashed, Judge Foster said: "It appears in this indictment that the publications alleged to have been sent through the mails in violation of the law are extracts from a complete article. It is my opinion that the government is required to plead the entire article and is not entitled to pick out a few paragraphs here and there and make them the basis of an indictment."

He added that if the government were allowed to pursue such a course it would be possible to indict a person for sending through the mails a copy of the bible.

than we expect, the utmost loss to the depositors would not exceed 10 per cent.

Greeks Heavy Depositors

In the foreign districts of the city, especially on Market street, men assembled and passed stories relative to the amount of money they had deposited and the length of time it had been there. Many have recently drawn large amounts to send to Greece for the expenses of their relatives who went to war, while others were preparing to take enough out of the bank to pay the return fare of their brothers or friends. It was stated by a Greek resident this morning that over 800 men and women of that nationality had accounts at the Traders bank and that the deposits exceeded $200,000.

One Market street merchant claims to have gone to the bank at 8.30 o'clock yesterday morning with a cloth bag containing a sum of about $200. He said he entered the bank and placed the money at the teller's window and as he turned to go out an examiner named and looked the door. He was not allowed to take the money from the bank. Many fruit stores proprietors in that district claim to have between $500 and $1000 in the bank and although they believe the money will be returned in time they have outstanding accounts that should be settled at once. Poles, Hebrews, Italians and other nationalities claim to be interested and questioned the English reading people as to the statements which were placed on the bank doors.

It was stated that the pay of several men who are employed in small manufacturing places in this city was held up on account of the bank being closed. Among the stories circulated this morning was one to the effect that over $2000 was deposited in the bank Saturday night by a local firm while hundreds of mill people placed their weekly earnings there as is their custom after completing a week's work. "Will the Christmas Savings club be affected?" is a question that is asked by both members of the club and business men who were expecting to get the trade of those who took up this plan of saving money. Many of the merchants believe they have lost business on account of this club but they were in the hope of getting the benefits at Christmas time.

Depositors Gathered at Bank

It was feared there would be trouble in the vicinity of the bank last night shortly after the closing of the mills, for a number of depositors representing several nationalities gathered around the building, and for some time it did really look as though there would be something doing.

Among the crowd were several women and children, who wept, for they feared their savings had been wiped away by the closing of the bank. There were several police officers on the scene and after some time they succeeded in dispersing the crowd, assuring the depositors that the closing of the bank did not mean the loss of their money.

A resident of Belvidere is congratulating himself over the fact that but a few days ago he withdrew from the Traders National bank all his cash, which amounted to over $1000. It is said that he wanted checks bearing his name and that the officials of the bank refused to grant his demand, and therefore, he withdrew his money and placed it at the Lowell Trust company, where he was given the desired checks. Another party, it is said, a man who was so unfortunate as to lose one eye a short time ago, has all his money at the Traders bank, something over $1000. Inasmuch as this man is unable to work, he naturally worries a lot over the result of the closing of the bank.

Three weeks ago the treasurer of the city of Lowell, transferred the sum of $9,000 from the Traders bank to other institutions, this being a part of the perpetual care money, placed there by the city treasurer for the cemetery department. It is barely possible that Treasurer Stiles knew of impending conditions at the bank.

The Traders National bank, which was ordered closed yesterday by the controller of currency was organized in 1822. There are forty-seven persons estates or firms living in Lowell, who hold stock in this bank, the heaviest stockholder being a man from Walpole, Alvi T. Baldwin, who is the holder of 1014 shares, a controlling interest.

Altogether there are 70 stockholders, and it is upon them that the losses will fall most heavily. Something under $100,000 of this stock is held in Lowell by the following who are listed at the state house this year as holding stock in the Traders bank:

Holders of Stock Unloaded

An examination of the books at the assessors' office this forenoon disclosed the fact that a number of former stockholders of the Traders National bank disposed of their stock during the past year, or at least the books show that certain parties were taxed for a certain number of shares during 1912, and that this year their names do not appear on the books as stockholders at the said bank.

Among those whose names appear on the 1912 books and not on the 1913 books, are the following with the number of shares they were taxed for: James F. Allen, New York, 554; Laura Brabrook, Taunton, 2; estate of Levi Dumas, Lowell, 5; Charles J. Gilden, Lowell, 106; Edward F. Metcalf, Providence, R. I., 202; Eugene G. Russell, Lowell, 1; trustees of F. H. G. Sproston, New York, 6; Rhoda Wood, Lowell, 5. John C. Burke last year was listed for 99 shares, but this year his number dropped to 10, according to the books. Alvi T. Baldwin of Walpole, increased the number of his shares from 10 in 1912 to 1014 this year.

FURIOUS WIND AND RAIN STORM

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21.—The eastern shore of Maryland was visited by a furious storm of wind and rain last night. Practically every town along the waterfront suffered severe damage from high water, the tide being the highest experienced in 20 years. In many places the water covered the streets from 12 inches to five feet in depth.

Athletes and Athletics

In spite of all the adverse criticism which arose over the administration of James O'Rourke, president, secretary and treasurer of the Eastern association, he was re-elected to the office yesterday afternoon. The Lowell-Hartford series got both his and Sturges in bad with the sporting public. We wonder if Murnane will ever come through in his fight for New England league control.

Freddie Welsh got some surprise last night in his bout with Milt Saylor of Indianapolis. Welsh was awarded the fight as the referee claimed the blow which put the Englishman away was foul. The holder of the British lightweight title was a badly used pugilist when he reached his dressing room.

Several thousand baseball fans turned out yesterday to welcome back Pitcher Bush of the Athletics on his return to Brainerd, Minn., his home town. The town went wild in the demonstration which greeted the world's series hero, the owners of the factories closing them so as to allow their operatives to attend the celebration.

The Giants took the second game of the trip from the White Sox yesterday in Springfield, Ill., when the teams met on a diamond partially covered with snow. In spite of the rugged weather Gov. Dunne of Illinois picked the first ball of the game.

Ad Wolgast has got some sparring partner in the Greek, Antone. While mixing it up with him yesterday Ad received a solid body smash and after winking up discovered that two of his ribs had been fractured by the blow. If Antone can hit as hard as he has displayed on the old warhorse he had better hang out his own shingle.

Haverhill high is liable to prove a big stumbling block for all the school-boys this season. The team is heavy as well as fast and is composed of ten veterans. Boston critics are already picking them as prospective champions and the prediction seems to have ample foundation.

The Tufts game Saturday will give the Harvard and Yale coaches a line on what the Army team can really do this season. Tufts has a team which is not to be despised and the soldiers will have to show signs of real football to pull out a creditable victory.

Eddie Murphy should have no difficulty in defeating Jimmy Duffy in St. Louis tomorrow night. Murphy is better in a contest of short duration when matched with a boy of Duffy's type and should outpoint him badly in all of the eight rounds.

Hobe Baker is developing into a kicker of the first water. The Princeton captain has always hoisted the ball some but has never before had the attention given him in this line that he is receiving this season. Princeton is hard up for a good punter who can hold his own with the other large college footers and Baker's present form is hailed with thanksgiving by the coaches.

Sherwood Magee, brother of our own Jimmy Magee, will go into the movies this winter. Magee will be one of the actors of a troupe in the middle west who are putting on several large films. The star outlander of the Phillies says that he prefers the movie to the vaudeville stage.

John H. Farrell, president of the New York state league, is probably the most popular man connected with baseball throughout the country. In nearly every other league the manager and owners are struggling to displace some officer of their organization but Farrell manages everything with a genial smile and all of the owners know that he is ready to step down at a moment's notice if he is not wanted by even a minority.

The first session of the National commission which was supposed to have been held yesterday in Chicago, was postponed on account of the absence of Messrs. Herrmann and Lynch. Today's meeting promises to be a rather warm affair if all the proposed questions come up for discussion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 21.—The back field of the Princeton varsity football eleven is considered very strong by impartial experts—almost as strong as that of Harvard, in fact.

slow to manifest their appreciation in applause. The motion pictures this week are as usual of a pleasing high standard and include the mutual weekly, a drama and a farce comedy.

Patrons of the theatre are sure of being pleased this week, and all will do well to order their seats in advance as the sales are very large.

KEITH'S THEATRE
Last night's performance at the B. F. Keith theatre was very largely attended and at the closing of the program an expression of satisfaction appeared upon every face, for the bill is one of the best ever presented at this house. It consists of six clever acts, most of which individually are worth the price of admission.

The feature of the bill is certainly the famous "Kitamura Troupe," which is as clever with the crayon as he is with his witty tongue. Lora and Payne are two acrobats of renown and their performance is unsurpassable. The opening of their act is a little tame, but the second part of the performance is always worth seeing and many regular patrons of the house find the mth leading attraction week-ly.

THE KASINO
Wednesday night special—It isn't every night in the week you are privileged to hear Miner's orchestra free of charge, for the simple reason that it is booked almost solid for dances and parties during the present season. Farquhar, Mrs. Herbert Hosmer, Joseph F. Talbot, Dr. C. E. Hosmer; road and roadside committee, Clarence A. Backer, William H. O'Brien, Thomas P. Sheridan, Nathaniel R. Jones, Mrs. Sidney A. Thompson, Mrs. C. White, Mrs. B. F. Harding, Ivory M. Hanson.

The board of registrars will meet Wednesday evening in the Republican hall at North Billerica and Saturday afternoon in the Billerica town hall. This will be the last opportunity to register before the state election.

PLAY BASEBALL
National Game Leads in Recreations After School in Waltham

WALTHAM, Oct. 21.—Thirty-four per cent of the boys and 50 per cent of the girls in grades six to nine in the high school of this city attend the moving picture shows each week, according to the report about to be issued by the recreation survey committee that has spent much time in compiling playtime facts from brief questionnaires written by the children of the public schools on the subject of how they amuse themselves.

Play Baseball
Less than half the girls mention outdoor play as their means of recreation. Many of the high school girls mention baseball as their principal game. Of the girls, 40.8 per cent mention music, whereas sewing, embroidery and other fancy work are scarcely mentioned at all. Of the boys, 74 per cent speak of music.

Home recreations are conspicuous by their absence, according to the committee. Baseball is more popular than all other games combined with the boys. With the exception of baseball, the boys mention no other game or sport that requires organization in its play.

Tag, hide-and-seek, hit-the-stick, chase, hare and hound are the other games indulged in by the boys. Reading is very popular with the boys and girls in the grammar schools. Very few of the high school pupils mention it. Mechanics and handicraft among certain boys show very profitable ways of spending time indulged in by a few. The recorded references, such as "making an electric switch" and "making things from wood," come from the same boys that are fond of baseball.

The recreation survey committee is concerning itself with such questions as: Have home, neighborhood and public provisions for recreation kept up with the needs, and are the recreation facilities at home normal in amount and attractiveness.

ALGER POPULAR HERE
Freddie Yella of Taunton will make his first appearance in Lowell Friday evening when he meets that clever boy from Cambridge, Mass., Alger. Alger is no stranger to the Lowell public as he has appeared here on several occasions. He is a clever two-handed fighter and has won many prizes. He also shaded Freddy Duffy here in a ten-round bout. Yella has not been very active this season but expects to be New England's lightweight champion before the season closes. The members should witness a very clever exhibition as both boys are very scientific.

Both boys are very scientific. Finnie Boyle of Lowell will try conclusions with Billy Edwards of Lawrence. Edwards will be remembered for his bouts here with Tommy Doyle. Finnie Boyle together with his brother Jack are now under the management of William Hamilton of Boston. In the first preliminary Nick Christa, a Greek champion, will meet Carroll of Fall River. In the other bout Billy Brooks will meet Kid Silva. The members are still discussing last week's entertainment. It was one of the best shows ever staged in Lowell.

WOOD AND MURPHY ARE JUST THE OPPPOSITE in their style within the roped arena. Wood is one of the kind who never backs down. The man who could make Wood halt for an instant while in a bout would have him whipped for he would not know how to act on the defensive. His entire repertoire is body work at close range and he wastes into an opponent with both gloves protecting his chin and body until close enough to cut loose with those terrific body punches.

Murphy, on the other hand, is a boxer. Don't imply by this statement that the Boston boy can't hit for he can and many are the boys who have found this fact out too late. Murphy's greatest asset as a boxer is the dexterity with which he jabs in his left hand, his blows going in so fast that it is difficult to follow their progress.

A great many fans think that a boxer with a good left hand can make a monkey out of Wood. On the other side about the same percentage of the game's patrons are certain that Wood can whip any boxer in the ring. A meeting between these two exponents of the squared circle would be the greatest lightweight card that could be produced before a boxing crowd in New England.

WRESTLING is also a sport which has not been seen in Lowell for many moons. To say that the game has been played out would be to utter a fallacy for the Boston sporting public are patronizing the game as never before and it is almost a certainty that wrestling would prove as popular here as in the Hub. The bad feature about the game is that many promoters are not on the level with the patrons of the game. Any man who conceives the idea that he can fool the fans who pay their money at the gate to watch a bona fide exhibition of grappling skill is making the mistake of his life. He can fool them for a short while, but the truth will come out before he has progressed very far, and the game is gone for every square promoter as well as for himself. If the right party who had the confidence of the public in Lowell should take up wrestling this winter here and bring on some really good performers he could make the same pay well.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS FOR Government Depend Upon Outcome

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Millions of dollars for the federal government depend upon the outcome of the corporation tax cases, up for argument today before the supreme court.

In the case of the Stratton's Independence limited of Colorado the court was called upon to decide whether the sale price of mineral taken from a mine is the income subject to the corporation tax or whether it is to be considered as invested capital converted into cash.

The court was ready to hear argument also in the New York street railway receivership cases in which is involved the question of whether the government may collect the tax from the income of insolvent corporations in the hands of receivers.

SAVE CREW OF BARGE
MEN TAKEN OFF J. B. SCULLY
HALF AN HOUR BEFORE IT SANK
—BROUGHT IN ON MELROSE

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Captain Carl Molansie and his crew of three of the barge Joseph E. Scully, which was lost off Highland Light last Wednesday night, arrived in Boston yesterday aboard the collier Melrose. The four men were rescued by the crew of the Melrose less than half an hour before the barge sank.

The Joseph E. Scully, together with the barge Knickerbocker, was in tow of the tug Thomas J. Scully when the Knickerbocker sprang a leak. Leaving the tug towed the Knickerbocker to Woods Hole.

In the storm the anchored barge dragged about and was well filled with water when sighted by the Melrose. Although the barge flew no distress signals Captain Frostad of the collier located her danger and made for her, taking off the crew.

The four men reside in Providence and started home as soon as they were put ashore here.

PROSPECTIVE ATHLETICS

What Sports the Lowell Sporting Public Would Appreciate—A Summary of Local Athletics

Lowell, and in fact all of this part of New England, is ripe again for the installation of basketball and polo leagues and it seems surprising that something of the sort has not been initiated this season by some of the men interested in the promotion of athletics. Lowell and vicinity has been out of both of these sports for some years now and it looks as though either basketball or polo or both would be a paying proposition.

The sporting public fell hard for polo when it was first staged here and professional basketball was likewise popular. Both branches of sport are exciting enough to keep the crowd on their toes, as the saying goes, and both are open games which give the fans an opportunity to follow every play made.

A few weeks ago several men who are interested in athletics came here and looked over the ground with the object in mind of forming a polo league. Lowell was looked to as the natural center of such a league and a franchise would have to be given this city were a league to prosper in this locality.

For some reason, however, the proposition was passed up for this season. Just why the powers that be were discouraged at the outlook was not divulged but some unforeseen obstacles must have arisen in the path of the promoters.

New England Lightweight Title
At present Eddie Murphy, the South Boston lightweight, appears to have earned a fairly clear title to the New England lightweight championship. Through a series of elimination bouts at the Atlas A. A. Murphy has come out with flying colors and such men as Joe Egan, Gilbert Gallant and Matty Baldwin have beaten the dust beneath the stinging blows and uncanny cleverness of the Peninsula boxer.

There is one man, however, which many of the boxing fans think could take Murphy's measure. Bay Wood, the Fall River Bearcat, has many followers as a prospective champion of New England.

Wood and Murphy are just the opposite in their style within the roped arena. Wood is one of the kind who never backs down. The man who could make Wood halt for an instant while in a bout would have him whipped for he would not know how to act on the defensive. His entire repertoire is body work at close range and he wastes into an opponent with both gloves protecting his chin and body until close enough to cut loose with those terrific body punches.

A great many fans think that a boxer with a good left hand can make a monkey out of Wood. On the other side about the same percentage of the game's patrons are certain that Wood can whip any boxer in the ring. A meeting between these two exponents of the squared circle would be the greatest lightweight card that could be produced before a boxing crowd in New England.

WRESTLING is also a sport which has not been seen in Lowell for many moons. PRESIDENT WILSON
Will be Taken to Sea on Dry Land
Tomorrow Night When He Visits
Naval Battalion

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—President Wilson will be taken to sea on dry land tomorrow night when he visits the naval battalion of the district of Columbia and as commander in chief of the fighting forces of the United States is welcomed with all the honors on the battalion's dock. The president is said to be looking forward to his "voyage."

The volunteer naval men have transformed their dock so that it resembles the deck of a battleship. When the president appears he will be "piped" over the side with all due formality and ceremoniously escorted to the quarterdeck to greet the senior officers. Other duty observances will follow.

SHORTAGE OF ENLISTED MEN
WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Shortage of enlisted men is the great defect in the army today, according to Major General Barry, commander of the department of the east, in his report. In this respect, he says, the army on inspection does not show a satisfactory condition. Besides, sufficient material on hand there is shown a lack of numbers required to comply with the militia law.

Plans are being worked out for the establishment of mobilization camps in all states so as to have them available in case there is a call for a mobilization of the militia.

THE GREAT ENGINE SCENE FROM "THE NINETY AND NINE" BEING PRESENTED AT THE MERRIMACK SQ. THEATRE

AMUSEMENT NOTES

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE
One of the most exciting pictures that has been seen in this city for some time is the Kaleem feature at the Opera House today entitled, "The Railroad Inspector's Peril."

The action of the play takes place on the top of a freight train which is running at the rate of 40 miles an hour. The whole company, even to the women members, go through their work as if they were upon the stage of any theatre. It is without doubt the best feature that has been released from the house of Kaleem this year, and must be seen to be appreciated.

"NAZIMOVA" IN "BELLA DONNA"
Charles Bryant who plays Doctor Isaacson with Madame Nazimova, an Englishman who was brought to this country by Charles Frohman, especially for the part he is now playing. Mr. Bryant was the original Mahmoud Karouli when "Bella Donna" was produced in London by Sir George Alexander at the St. James' theatre. There is small question but that the heroine of this play is one of the wickedest women the stage has ever in a long time, but by her art, Nazimova is said to make this creature of impulse most fascinating. With the same company that was seen during the successful run at the Empiro theatre, New York, last season and with the big four act production, which is said to be one of the most elaborate and atmospheric that Charles Frohman has ever put out, Nazimova is to present "Bella Donna" at the Lowell Opera House next Saturday evening, Oct. 25th, for one night only.

THE MERRIMACK SQUARE
A thrilling four act drama entitled "The Ninety and Nine" is the offering of the company at the Merrimack Square theatre, and it was presented yesterday afternoon and evening with decided success attending the efforts of the members of the company. No little credit should go to Howard Sidney for the manner in which the scenes have been arranged, especially the spectacular engine scene in the third act, when "Tom Silvertown" the hero of the piece, pilots an engine through a sea of flames in a prairie fire.

The play itself was commendably presented by the Merrimack Square players. Walter Scott Weeks is seen as "Tom Silvertown," a young man who has just come from New York where he was being sought on a false murder charge. He goes to Marlowe, Indiana, where he becomes addicted to drink from brooding over his troubles. One "Ruth Blake," who is no other than Grace Young becomes interested in Tom, and stands by him in spite of his faults. An attempt is made to wrong him, but the audience is so much interested in the play that they are not aware of this. The cast is quite a large one, and there are seen several new faces.

The audience yesterday were most appreciative of the efforts of the Merrimack Square Players, and were not

EARLY CURRENCY ACTION

It now becomes evident that President Wilson's wish for an early settlement of the currency question is bearing fruit. Such notable democratic senators as O'Gorman, Reed and Hitchcock were in favor of delay at first but they are not now so strenuously opposed to its immediate consideration. It is being seen that if the currency question is held over, the entire program of business legislation which the president has laid out for the immediate future will be disturbed. He intended the tariff as the first step in the ultimate freedom of business from trammels of needless and faulty laws, and the settlement of the currency question will go far towards completing the great reforms promised in the democratic platform.

The president is not in favor of continuing the present fruitless committee hearings but favors a caucus which he predicts would bring about the favorable results in the senate which it did in the house. He is being cheered by evidences of a strong republican support. The special representative of the New York World which is making a special study of the currency question, states that four out of the five republican members of the committee have expressed themselves as ready to sign a favorable report on the bill, provided a few slight changes were made, because of the "unquestioned benefits that the measure as a whole would bring to business." This view has been taken to the president by Senator Nelson, the ranking republican on the committee. It, therefore, becomes evident that the bill is not being regarded as a strictly party measure.

Secretary McAdoo has just made public a letter in which he scores those who have been using the pending currency bill as a pretext for selling their bonds below par market price. "I cannot understand," he says, "why any national bank should sell its bonds at present quotations. Certainly there is nothing in the pending legislation to justify such action." He refers especially to items which he had seen or which had been called to his attention calculated to cause apprehension about the "2 per cent bonds."

Secretary McAdoo declares his belief in the readiness of the bankers to do all in their power to co-operate with the government as soon as the currency bill becomes law. He says:

"I have no sympathy with those who say that the bank are so lacking in patriotism that they will refuse to accept and obey a law enacted in the interest of all the people of the country. Such statements are a reflection upon the bankers. I believe that they will be the first to come forward and help the government make the new system a success as soon as the senate and house act finally and the president approves the measure."

That the bill will give them ample room for this friendly cooperation is still more strongly asserted as follows:

"I can see no ground for apprehension by the banks about the currency bill or its effects. I am confident that the measure when passed will be acceptable to the country, and that it will prove of enduring benefit to the banks, to the general business interest and to all the people."

It is very gratifying that the currency bill is not being regarded as a strictly party measure. All parties are pledged to prevent panics and provide better currency facilities and the pending bill will do both. The New York World says editorially that it may be "faulty in detail" but that it "would achieve the ends sought." As the ends sought are the freedom of business from the restrictions of one-sided banking laws, it is to be hoped that the pending currency bill will be passed without delay.

CLUBS OR THE HOME

The accusation that American people are becoming more addicted yearly to the club habit and losing the home tendencies is not a new one. Neither is it a new assertion that they are leaving their children more and more in the hands of external guides such as the churches, clubs, fraternal societies, and delegating to these external agencies the duties that properly belong in the home. One of the latest to make such an assertion is Rev. Edwin H. Van Eften, assistant rector of Trinity church, Boston, who made a stirring address on that subject last Sunday.

It is well that we have boys' clubs and uplift societies for the young. They are sources of unknown good, and their influence is wide. But they cannot take the place of the home with its surroundings and influences. In the life of the average individual when time dulls many impressions and when college days and business life blur us but little, the deepest and holiest impressions are twined round memories of early home life even though some of its privations were too great to be softened by time. Parents who fail to realize the value of home influences are leaving a void in the nature of their children that no other experience can fill. As the Rev. Mr. Van Eften pointed out, the clubs or churches may teach many things but ter than they could be taught at home, but they cannot give that feeling of responsibility which should obtain in the relations of children and their parents.

Another modern tendency which the distinguished preacher regretted is the agitation for sex instruction in the schools. He said that there is a time in the lives of boys and girls when parents must explain many things to them and he argued that matters so learned would not seem suggestive or vulgar to the young mind. What is needed, he said, is a moral will power rather than sex instruction, and no number of school lectures will develop this strength of character. He was very uncompromising in his attitude of condemnation and declared: "A father or mother has a right to be suspicious of anyone who gives their child such education, unless the matter has been discussed by them and the informant, and their permission given."

THE TRADERS BANK

The insolvency of a bank causes a thrill of consternation in any community, for in no other calamity of trade or finance are the fortunes of more people affected so speedily. The closing of the local Traders bank, therefore, has been the main topic of conversation locally since the news became public and unfortunately it has caused a great deal of mental suffering, for owing to the high rate of interest offered in its savings department and its wide advertisements of unusual advantage, it was especially patronized by those who had but a little to invest, but whose little was their all. It has long been known in local financial circles, that the Traders bank while offending against no law, was not strictly complying with the spirit of the regulations governing the segregation of savings banks from national or other banks. The public, however, is little interested in the technical aspect of such problems and deposit their money unquestioningly so long as everything is apparently safe and the interest high.

Some few years ago the Sun, in an article on banks and banking, said that there was one bank in Lowell which was not complying with the laws enacted to protect the money of depositors. In savings banks, strictly speaking, the regulations are very stringent regarding the uses to which the bank may put the money deposited, but in the Traders savings bank, the deposits were used, as now appears, in ill advised investment if not in speculation. It is well that in its present embarrassment the bank does not involve any other local bank. The weakness in its policy regarding a "savings" department kept the other banks of the city aloof and in this they are to be commended for their prudence and caution. Apart from the positive loss to depositors, bank failures are to be regretted because of their effect in causing many people to distrust all banking institutions. There is no reason for this general distrust locally as the failure of the Traders bank but throws into brighter relief the soundness of most of our banking institutions. With the passing of the currency bill it is to be hoped that no such bank as the Traders will be allowed to exist and the sooner such protection comes the better will it be for all the people of this country.

RITUAL MURDER

Let us forget that Russia is still far from civilization as we know it, comes the world celebrated Beilis trial with the Russian government striving might and main to prove that the Jews of Kiev killed a boy for the purpose of using human blood in their ritual of one of their religious ceremonies. It is not strange that there is so much Jewish persecution in a land of an ignorant peasantry which is absolutely subject to the despotic rule of the czar. Ritual murder is an old cry and almost all religions have suffered from the accusation at one time or another, but nowhere but in Russia would it be made the basis for a legal trial in this tolerant and enlightened age.

It is well that so many Christian sects have expressed their horror at the Russian method of stirring up race antipathy, and it is also well that America should be silent. Our Christianity has its roots too deeply in the olden Jewish dispensation and too many of the Jewish race have come here and made good citizens for our people to be indifferent when in their religion they are accused of nameless horrors. The opinion of the world should penetrate the circle of superstition and ignorance at Kiev and free the unfortunate Beilis.

THE FAMILY COUGH MEDICINE

In every home there should be a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, ready for immediate use when any member of the family contracts a cold or a cough. Prompt use will stop the spread of sickness. S. A. Sted, of Mason, Mich., writes: "My whole family depends upon Dr. King's New Discovery as the best cough and cold medicine in the world. Two 30c bottles cured me of pneumonia. Thousands of other families have been equally benefited and depend entirely upon Dr. King's New Discovery to cure their coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Every dose helps. Price 50c and $1.00. All druggists. H. L. Bucklin & Co., Philadelphia or St. Louis."

Delegated J. K. Kalamianole of Hawaii, known to his friends as Prince Cupid, tells of the experience of a Los Angeles divine who was making a trip on horseback up the mountain of Haleakala, one of the famous summits of the Hawaiian islands. It appears that the minister was fond of his pipe and stopping at a little store which was run by a venerable Chinese, inquired if he could buy some tobacco. Very gravely the answer came back:

"No, no, no, no smoke, no no drink, no Christian."

The old black "mammy" of a South Side family was recently presented with an oil portrait of herself done by the name of her young mistress. When the portrait was exhibited to the family a young son, after a wink at the artist, proceeded to criticize it unmercifully.

"Mammy," he declared, "that doesn't look a bit like you."

"Now, Jimmy, you are sure pokin' for that a livin' image of me a-fore Ap'ril, much hair?"

"Gee, mammy, two women never had that much hair."

"Mammy" stepped back and carefully surveyed the portrait. "Well, Miss Edith done told dat arnt to tech up mah hair, an' mebbe he did overdo it a little. Dis love business surely make a man mighty uncertain."—Kansas City Star.

A lady appeared as witness in Judge Ben Lindsey's juvenile court in Denver. As one of the preliminary questions the judge asked: "What is your age, Madam?"

"Thirty, your honor."

"Where you a witness in this court about five years ago?"

"I was, your honor."

"Did you not tell the court then that you were thirty?"

"I did, your honor, and I want you to understand that I am not one of these women that say one thing at one time and another thing at another."

Business men who have places of business near the corner of Central and Merrimack streets and many people whose daily affairs bring them past this locality are complaining about the unearthing noises made by the trolley cars as they round the curve on their way from Central street into Merrimack street. Note of this general annoyance was made in The Sun some ten days ago and up to yesterday there was a marked improvement, but the noise of the trolley is again in great demand at the track curves around Merrimack Square.

DID CHILD WAKE UP CROSS OR FEVERISH?

Look, Mother! If Tongue is Coated, Give "California Syrup of Figs"

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a tea-spoonful, and in a few hours all that foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again.

All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

THE HILLS

Now men there that love the plain With yellow cornland drest, And others love the sleepy vales Where lazy cattle rest.

For in the hills a man may go Forever as he list.

And see a lot of distant worlds, Where streams and valleys twist A league below, and seem to hold The whole earth in his fist.

Or if he tread the dunes beneath A new delight is his For every crevice a kingdom-edge Whose conqueror he is.

And every fell the frontier Of unguessed empires.

And when the clouds are on the land In shelter he will lie, And watch down the misty plains The rain go marching by.

Along the silent flanks of fells Whose heads are in the sky.

And in the hills are crystal farns As deep as maiden's eyes, About whose edge at mid-day noon The heavy sunshine lies.

And deep therein the troll-folk dwell, Can make men wondrous wise.

The gorge of spring is like a host Of warriors in gold and blue, And summer heather like a cloak Of purple on the world.

While autumn's russet bracken is Monks' livery of old.

Our lord the sun knows every land, But most he loves the fells; At turning of the summer torch Upon their summits dwells.

At eve he lingers here to catch The sound of vesper bells.

The men who dwell among the hills Have eyes both strong and kind, For as they go about their works In heaven's sun and wind.

The spirit of the vanished hills Gives them the steadfast mind.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

GOOD NEWS

New York World: Announcement that the New Haven road has succeeded in arranging terms with its employees without a collision that would tie up the road is about the best item it has contributed to the news for many a day.

Having now shown ability to run the road, the new management may be expected to show it can run the trains.

OUR IMMIGRANTS

Boston Post: In his address at the City club, Friday evening, Dr. Elliot reported to say, in effect, that the state of mind among our people today is of contempt for persons of foreign races now entering this country.

Dr. Elliot protested against this sentiment; he characterized it as a mistake, and he predicted, by inference, that the American race in the near future will be reinforced by the introduction and incorporation of the strong men and women now seeking entrance as immigrants.

CATHOLIC CONGRESS

Boston Herald: Although the organization of the Catholic church is a marvel of preparedness, here in this country the work of presenting to the people the needs of the missions, both home and foreign, has not been effective as the more zealous Catholics had wished. Many have noted a confusion of appeals and a duplication of the results of this congress that this matter will be simplified, so that the needs of the various mission fields may henceforth be met before American Catholics in more definite and clear-cut manner.

CALLING A HAUNT

Lewiston Sun: First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill renews his offer to Germany to let up for a year on their ship-building program. If the offer were accepted and the two great rivals delayed for one year the great increase in warships, it would be easy to continue to delay during succeeding years.

When these two find it possible to reduce military expenditure, it will be easy for the other governments to make corresponding reductions.

OUR PHILIPPINE POLICY

Johnstown Democrat: The Philippines now have reason to feel that they have in a large measure become responsible for their own future welfare. They have an incentive for which to work.

They have a goal, that they must make good, that they must come through. To a much larger degree than before their destiny is in their own hands. True it is that they are not yet waking alone.

The Philippines are now in a majority upon the Philippine commission.

A KIND SUGGESTION

Fall River Globe: If, as an eminent authority states, the details of fashion in the near future, are for fewer clothes for women, two things should be agreed on as soon as possible for the best interests of all concerned. The climate ought to be made milder, or the sea bathing season lengthened.

CARRY RED FLAG

Men Fined in Boston—Socialists to Fight the Case in Courts

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—A red flag was unfurled in the first session of the police court yesterday when Sergeant John Anderson of the Lagrange street station was requested by Judge Wentworth to allow him to see the flag.

On one of the flags were the words "Liberty or Death" and on the other appeared "Boston Socialist Party."

The flags were carried in the parade Saturday night. It was alleged, by William R. Henry, 41, of Bowler street, Lynn, and Joseph Melrovitz, 28, business manager of The Leader, a socialist paper.

Both men pleaded not guilty, but were found guilty and fined $25 each. They were given, through their attorney, John Weaver Sherman, until today to secure bonds, as he announced that the socialist party intended to make a test case of the right to carry the red flag through the streets on parade.

THE HEARING ON STREETS

SEVERAL STREET AND SEWER PETITIONS ARGUED BEFORE COMMISSIONER DONNELLY

Commissioner James E. Donnelly of the streets and highways department conducted a hearing on street and sewer petitions last night at city hall, and with the exception of one, all the petitions were referred without any remonstrance.

The hearing was opened at 7.30 o'clock and the first matter brought up was a petition by Omer J. Smith that a concrete sidewalk be laid on the southerly side of Crawford street, in front of premises at the corner of Fourth avenue. There was no remonstrance.

Walter G. Charles asked that a concrete sidewalk be laid on the northerly side of Crawford street in front of No. 91. No remonstrance.

John Conroy appeared in favor of the petition that Bartlett street be macadamized from 105 easterly, and that edgestones be laid on the southerly side of said street from Alder street easterly a distance of 100 feet. No remonstrance.

George H. Lussier petitioned that a sidewalk of edgestones and cinders be laid at the corner of Moody street and Sixth avenue, a distance of 83 feet on Moody street and 55 feet on Sixth avenue. No remonstrance.

George N. Reid asked that a sewer be laid on Daniels street from Anderson street northerly a distance of about 200 feet. The petition was also favored by F. D. Russell and Thomas Johnson. John Robertson, although admitting that the sewer will be a benefit to houses in the locality, declared himself as being opposed to paying sewer assessment, and when he was told that the assessment would be one cent a square foot for the frontage multiplied by the depth, he withdrew his objections.

Southworth Farrington said he will have no use for the sewer and he does not feel he should pay any assessment.

Wm. A. Sheehan favored the acceptance of Bourne street, from Otis street to that portion of said street already accepted, and that said street be macadamized and edgestones laid on both sides thereof. Others in favor were Carl G. Phil, Allan Hallas and Patrick Craig.

F. A. Fisher, appearing for the Lowell Bleachery, believed in the improvement, but said it will necessitate the seeking of damages from the city for the removal of two buildings which are now in full use. It will cost $2200 to move the buildings back.

The hearing adjourned at 8.10 o'clock.

The county commissioners were at the court house yesterday morning. Chairman Gould was absent, owing to illness, while Messrs. Marden and Williams were present. As there was no business on hand, the two commissioners inspected the court house and discussed the matter of improvements.

The condition of the weather caused the postponement of a proposed trip to some of the towns to investigate the condition of the highways. It is probable that before long some improvements will be made in the court house grounds.

CITY WINS CASE FOREIGN PRIESTS

Verdict of $25,153.50 for City of Boston for Taxes on Cemetery Meeting of Belgian and Holland Clergymen at Catholic Congress

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Judge Crosby handed down his decision yesterday in favor of the city of Boston for collection of taxes against the proprietors of Mt. Auburn cemetery. The city sued for taxes on personal property and Judge Crosby finds for it in the sum of $25,153.50, of which $24,600 is for taxes and $553.50 for interest. It is understood that the case is a test one, and will be brought before the full bench of the supreme court. The suit was brought by Bowdoin S. Parker, tax collector, and argued by Attorney Joseph P. Lyons, assistant corporation counsel for the city. The suit was for the taxes of 1912. As a result of an order of the city council passed April 16, 1912, taxes of $24,600 were levied upon the proprietors of the cemetery and payment demanded, but was refused, and suit was begun last July.

It went to Judge Crosby on an agreed statement of facts, in which it was announced that no taxes had been assessed upon the personal property of the cemetery in 1912 by any other city or town. The personal property tax, according to the theory of the proprietors, that they had an office in the city and were consequently taxable. Attorneys for the defendant argued that the cemetery case came under the non-taxable provisions of the statutes. The cemetery contains 156 acres, of which six acres are in Cambridge and the remainder in Watertown, and is valued at $1,500,000.

SENATOR FISHER HEARD

ON DEFEAT OF PORK BARREL BILL—MR. HOGAN AND COUNTY CANDIDATES ACTIVE

Senator Fisher addressed a large and enthusiastic rally at West Lynn last evening at which he explained in detail his reasons as a member of the committee on ways and means for opposing the "Pork Barrel Bill," so called, which would have placed a burden of $5,000,000 upon the commonwealth and showed where subsequent developments in Lynn have proven that he was right in opposing this measure, and the citizens of Lynn are now awakened to this fact. He also pointed out the reasons why a certain newspaper in Lynn was attacking him to this opposition. His remarks were greeted with frequent applause.

Mr. John J. Hogan, candidate for councillor was also present and received a flattering welcome. Both Senator Fisher and Mr. Hogan will address a rally in Saugus on Thursday evening. The territory which each has to cover is so extensive that both are compelled to spend most of their time outside the city of Lowell.

(Julia Giff in The Clubwoman)

One reason I so strongly recommend mercolized wax is that it really takes the place of several different cosmetics, saving time, patience and expense. It is better than any cleansing cream, and better than any rouge for accomplishing the results for which such articles are used. As the wax actually absorbs an old, faded or discolored complexion, it gradually appears in clearer, softer, healthier and more youthful than any cosmetic-made complexion. Spreading on a thin coat of this wax at night, washing it off mornings in a weak or dry skin produces a marvelous transformation. Just one ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, will do the work. There's nothing better to remove freckles, moth patches, liver spots, sallowness, blotches, pimples or blackheads.

For wrinkles and loose, saggy skin, I invariably recommend a face bath made by dissolving 1 oz. of powdered exfolite in 1/2 pt. which haze. This has remarkable astringent and tonic properties.

MRS. JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER IS SERIOUSLY ILL AT HOME IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Oct. 21.—Although the true nature of the illness of Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, wife of the Standard Oil magnate, is concealed by the family and her physicians, the condition of her health is so alarming that Mr. Rockefeller has abandoned his plan to return to his New York residence for the winter. It is feared Mrs. Rockefeller could not stand the trip to New York. While friends of the Rockefeller family profess to be in ignorance as to the nature of her ailment, it is known that among the complications is the fact that Mrs. Rockefeller is fast losing her hearing. She is said now to be almost totally deaf.

KILLED IN STORM

A Chicago Switchman, Blinded by Snow, Was Run Over by Train

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Chicago awoke this morning to witness the first heavy snow storm of the season. Snow began falling last evening and continued all through the night. Early this morning the mercury dropped below the freezing point.

Traffic on the surface and elevated roads here today was delayed by a heavy storm and half a dozen persons were reported injured in accidents caused by the great fall of snow and ice.

Blinded by the snow, Charles Blake, a switchman, was run down by a freight train and killed.

The sign "Savings Department," by which the law was evaded and money taken in under conditions very much akin to false pretenses. That such a deceptive system of getting hold of the people's money actually flourished here, shows that a speedy change in the law to protect the public against such savings departments in the future is most urgently needed.

BURY ZEPPELIN VICTIMS

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—Joint funeral services were held today over bodies of 23 of the 28 victims of the disaster to the Zeppelin dirigible ship at Johannisthal on Friday last. The ceremony took place at noon in the old Garrison church near the Imperial palace in the presence of emperor and his sons, the empress and the crown princess, Count Zeppelin and about a thousand officers of the army and navy.

The attaches of the various foreign legations were also present in uniform. After the services in the church seven of the bodies were taken to an adjoining cemetery for burial, the six sons of the emperor head the procession of mourners. The others were taken to the late homes of the dead men in various parts of the country.

GREEKS DID NOT COME BLOW TO LOVER

ON THE MORNING TRAIN FROM FALL RIVER—EXPECTED TODAY OR TOMORROW

A number of local Greeks journeyed to the Boston & Maine depot this morning shortly before the arrival of the 8:40 train from Fall River as it is believed that some of the Greeks who took part in the Balkan and Bulgarian wars will arrive in this city today or tomorrow. Over 1300 men who took part in the wars arrived in New York yesterday on the steamer Athenae, which left Athens on Oct. 3. The local members of the Greek army will go from New York to Fall River, it is believed, and come to this city by train. The next train from Fall River will arrive about 4 o'clock this afternoon.

R.R. Men Must 'Railroad Pictures of Sweet hearts From Watch

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—No longer engineers, conductors, brakemen or other employees in the operating department of the Illinois Central railroad carry pictures of their wives, bles, or sweethearts on their watch crystals. An order against the practice was issued yesterday and distributed today by the management. Officials of the company have decided that such pictures are likely to distract the attention of employees in their work and that accidents might result. When an employee pulls out his watch his attention should be devoted exclusively to the time, not to the fair face of his girl or wife, it says.

WOMEN'S CLUB

Heard Delightful Recital
by Miss Herford in Clever Monologs

The first program meeting of the Women's club was held yesterday afternoon and was largely attended. The members were furnished a delightful entertainment by Beatrice Herford, a highly talented young lady, who gives original witty monologs in a most clever manner.

Miss Herford's humor is obtained from her own observations, and in the main deals with the sketching of characters of women of various types and under chosen circumstances. She she makes use of no costume or stage equipment. This fact, combined with her wonderfully pleasing personality, are the means of gaining widespread popularity and favor for the talented young lady wherever she is heard.

For her topics yesterday, she chose the following: "The Coast," "A Lady the following: "The Cook," "The Lady From England," "The Only Child," and "The Discontented Voter." The latter was a clever caricature of the woman voter. One of her best efforts was "The Lady From England," for it gives her an excellent opportunity for character interpretation. Her subject is

Each of Miss Herford's impersonations was a real delight, and those who heard her were high in praise of her talents.

TO GROW HAIR ON A BALD HEAD

BY A SPECIALIST
Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has cured many:

after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out, and destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist. Bay Rum, 6 ounces; Lavona de Composee, 2 ounces; Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. If you wish it performed, add half to one teaspoonful of To-Kalon Perfuma, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics.
